NOTICE.

The printing, publishing and editorial offices of this newspaper have been removed to a more central position at the «Libro Inglés» of Schwengel Brothers, Calle Treinta y Tres No. 61, between alles Piedras and Cerrito.

At the same time the name of the paper has been changed to the more appropriate title of The Montevideo Times, s by which title it will henceforth be known.

November 24, 1890,

The Montevideo Times

Montevideo, November 25, 1890.

TO OUR READERS.

The readers of this paper are en-titled to an explanation as to the sudden change in a title which has served for nearly three years. For this it will be necessary to give them some insight into what may be termed the secret history of recent English jourralism in Montevideo. Notwithstanding the steady growth of British interacts in the Penallis and the increasing importance of the English colony here, for many years there was no English paper until on March 1, 1888, there was published the River Plate Times. This first appeared as a weekly paper, and was subventioned by the Government of President Taics. Dr. Lulis Hermet. President Tajes, Dr. Julio Herrera y wealth and resources of the Republic to English readers, for which pur-pose rose coloured tints were largely employed. Its title, which, by the way, had been used many years affairs, was written more for Europ-ean than local readers, and could not be said to have any particular local bearing.

A week later there appeared the Express, the first daily English paper ever published in the Republic. This, likewise, was assisted by President Tajes' Government, though not with great regularity. For some little time both these papers were moderately prosperous.

moderately prosperous.

Early in 1889 the River Plate Times was published twice instead of once a week, but very shortly after, the subvention, which for some time the subvention, which for some time had been paid very irregularly, was withdrawn altogether, and on July 12, 1889, the paper being virtually. dead, the connexion and title were bought up and assumed by the Montevideo Independent, a daily paper which first saw the light on June 1, 1889, and which was published in the interests of certain capitalists, and which solicited but never obtained Government support.

which is not the first suggestion made by the River Plate. Co ten poraries when quoting had to use the clumsy circumfocution "The River Pla's Times of Montevideo." On March 31, 1890, the Express, does not doubt in the least that his claim is morally and legally substantial, he does not think it worth while to enter into dispute or litigation to to preserve atitle which is so unsuitable and which has such antecedents. Therefore, without waiving his claim, he prefers to avoid any such trouble by re-christening his paper by the new and more appropriate name of The Monthing Times, by which name it will henceforth be known.

THE MONTEVIDEO TIMES, therefore, appears to-day as practically a new paper. The English Community here, and all readers interested in his Republic, have now before them, for the first time, an entirely independent English newspaper assisted by for the first time, an entirely independent English newspaper, assisted by no subvention, subservient to no private interests, subject to no extraneous influences, and free from all obligations save those of truth and konour. Thus voluntarily freeing itself from all doubtful or undesirable associations, the paper to-day opens a new record, and the outspoken policy which has already had such favourable effect will be pursued without fear or favour.

ed without fear or favour.

Although the resident English community is not large, there are great interests at stake. Both finan-cially and socially there is evident necessity for a genuine, straight-forward English paper, which shall be of service and interest equally to readers here and elsewhere. But to remain independent, or rather to continue its existence at all, such a paper must be self-supporting, that is to say, it must be maintained, not by subventions or by private al-lowances, but by the income derived from its advertisements and subscripcions. Therefore, confiding in the candour and honesty of his intentions, the proprietor takes his opportunity of earnestly appealing to all his readers, and to all persons with any interest in this control of the co any interest in this country, to give him increased support in his new departure. The more liberally this is done, the more will he be able to improve the paper and to make it worthy of and valuable to the community. It rests with no one so much as its predecessors have only been in name, a representative English paper in Uruguay, which may be read with absolute confidence by all.

ANOTHER ACT.

The powers whose mission it is to misgovern this unhappy little Republic have completed another act in the farcical comedy they have lately been playing to the delight of no one except themselves. On Saturday, the Chamber of Representatives passed in detail the Government schemes for the reorganisation of the National Bank of which we have already given account, and which had urday, the Chamber of Representatives passed in detail the Government schemes for the reorganisation of the National Bank of which we have already given account, and which had been approved in general earlier in the week. The few independent deputies who had previously expressed their disapproval of or rather. pulses who had previously expressed their disapproval of, or rather, disgust with, these schemes, know-ing any further opposition was useless, refrained from any dis-cussion. The consequence was that the details of the three schemes, the details of the three schemes, which had (apparently) taken over two months in preparation, were hurried through without even the pretence of consideration, and were all fully sanctioned in a sitting of of contrast, and assuredly contrast is not wanting in the present case. First and foremost we have, very close at hand, the open declaration of one of the most at the and managed and managed Directors of the declaration of one of the most externed and respected Directors of the Bank, Don Pedro Piñeyrua, in the letter of resignation transcribed in our last issue. With his intimate knowledge of the situation and of the resources of the Bank, he declares in the most unequivocal terms that the Public Powers are unable to furnish any opportune elements for the redemption of the Bank, that recent events abroad rander any such efforts still more hopeless, that ewhatever road is taken there is no arriving at a heal by solution, and that therefore all these magnificent schemes and all the labours of the checkmate or silence this policy a counter claim being laid to the tle of the paper, for the purchase f which he holds the receipt.

Mr. Alfred Frewin, the constructing engineer of the Midland and Northern Railways, and in representation of the railway constructors Perry, Cuibill, De Lungo and Company, of London, has applied for a concession for the establishment of a railway from Fray Remas, the concession for the establishment of a reilway from Fray Bentos, the terminus of the Western line, to Paysandu, being an extension of 130 kilometres, (about 80 miles). The application has already been reported on by the Direction of Public Works, and will shortly be referred to the Chambers.

Complaint has been made in New York of the practice of allowing census papers to be filled in by the servants of the family; but the system has found a defender on the ground of its tendency sto improve the statistics and elevate the lower classes. As an example, this social philosopher ironically cites the fact that the census schedule of the family with whom he is living in San Francisco was filled up by the cook, who returned herself as a boarder.

Lawn-tennis has long laboured under suspicion of favouring flirtation; but, regarded from this point of view, a writer in The Field assures us that golf really leaves it, as the sporting world say, nowhere. Whether the flirtation be one of a bare attentions or of subsequent intentions, a golf is essentially the flirter's game. The philosophy of all this is, to our contemporary's thinking, extremely simple. Mamma can watch the whole game of croquet, and she can sit under the trees and espy what is going on at lawn tennis; but she feels the weight of years tell upon her if she attempts the duties of chaperon round a golf ground. Thus her daughters who are allowed 2500 (paid up) cash. . 5000 10000 10000 $5000 cash. of chaperon round a golf ground. When $5000 tmw two garden party cards arrive, clashing as to date; and «golf» figures as an extra feature on one, while the other specifies lawn tennis only, The Field writer has observed a decided preference for the first-named, even on the part of damsels who can more than hold their own with the racket. cone seldom sees a pretty girl in Europe, and if one does, she is sure to be an American. So says, in all the flagrancy of print, a writer in a newspaper much read by the ladies of St. Louis, U. S. A. Conly the hardware pretty in England. chambermaids are pretty in England, sis the next ridiculous sentence. The English girl is tailor-made, says this scribe, who perhaps never expected to be read in England. Once he thought he had found a really pretty English girl, and was in the midst of reconstructing his ideas and just about to admit that there could occasionally be beauty in our island apart from chambermaids, when he heard the lovely creature speak. She had glorious chestnut hair and violet eyes, and what she said was, "Isn't it just too sweet? But I wish I could get a pound of Philadelphia cara-mels." She was his own countrywoman. He does not admire the faces of aristocratic Englishwomen. He thinks them too long, and accuses them of accentuating this fault by wearing their hair pinned high on their heads and exaggerating the north-east to south-west diagonal. Beauty is of America only. Frenchwomen, he continues, are sallow and angular; Swiss, unattractive; Germans, too placid, and for ever knitting, their life being «all stockings,

I don't think I shall propose to Christina this week after all, thought Walter Done as he strolled along lazily. The most delightful part of love-making is certainly its first beginning. The little tremor of hope and expectation; the half-needless doubt you feel as to whether she really loves you; the pains you take to pierce the thin veil of maidenly reserve; the triumph of detecting her in a blush or a flutter when she sees you coming—all these are delicate little morsels to be rolled daintily on the critical palate, and pleasurable for a man of taste by th -The Apolo brought on Sunday from B. her.'

He crossed the road compassionately with the tottering old grand-mother, giving her his helping hand over the kerbstone, and following her with bated breath into the close little sick-room. Then he flung open the tiny casement with its diamond-leaded pages so as to let in the fresh leaded panes, so as to let in the fresh summer air, and picked a few sprigs of sweet-briar from the porch, which he joined with the gerannium from his own button-hole to make a tiny nosegay for the sick girl. After that, he sat and talked awhile gently in an undertone to pale, pretty little Nellie herself, and went away at last promising to sent her some jelly and some soup from the vicarage

She's a sweet little child, he said to himself musingly, 'though I'm afraid she's not long for this world now, and the poor like these small attentions dearly. They get them seldom, and value them for the sake of the thoughtfulness they imply rather than for the sake of the mere things themselves. I can order a bottle of calf's-foot at the grocer's, and Carter can set it in a mould and Carter can set it in a mould without any trouble; while as for the The str. LIGURIA will leave

'He's a dear, good man, that he is, is young passon,' murmured old Mary Long as Walter disappeared between the elmtrees; 'and he do love the poor and the zick, the same as if he was their own brother. God bless his zoul, the dear, good vulla, vor all his kindness to our Nully.'

Scott's Emulsion

This preparation effects the most astonishing cures.

Beware of imitations
Jerez, January 20, 1885.

For three years I have been using Scott's Emulsion of cod liver oil with hypophosphites of lime and soda, almost daily, and have found it effect really admirable cures of scrofulous affections and tuberculosis, also in disease of the bones. I now prescribe it with great confidence in infantile rickets, for in 80 per cent of the cases in which I have used it it has proved successful. I therefore regard it as a valuable acquisition and have great pleasure in issning this certificate of its in issuing this certificate of its merits.
