POLITICAL NOTES.

In the Council of State, on Wednesday, a petition in favor of the reestablishment of bull fights was received from the residents of La Union. On the motion of Sr. Zuniga, the Legislative Committee was asked to despatch report on the matter. The Military Committee presented a Report in favor of the application of the Exe cutive to confer promotions on Bri-gadier General Nicomedes Castro and Brevet Colonels Pollo and Marquez, and the corresponding Law was fully sanctioned with-out debate. A lengthy and dry discussion then ensued over the Bill making obligatory the payment of paving expenses in the Department of Montevideo. The Bill was energetically opposed by Sres, Alonso and Casaravilla and was eventually referred back to Committee for modification. Dis cussion in detail had commenced of the Bill for construction of embarking wharves for live-stock, when the Council was counted out at

The question of the presidency tract of the Council still remains unsolved, but will probably be treated in to-day's sitting. As we under-stand, it has been decided to accept the resignation of Dr. Juan Carlos Blanco without further demur, and the election, will pro-bably fall on Sr. Federico Ca-

Decrees have been issued from the Ministery of Government ap-pointing Col. Bartolomé Caballero as Prefect of Salto, in place of Sr.
A. Noboa, resigned; and Cols. Angel Casalla and Elias Borches as interim Prefects of Minas and Payandu respectively.

Respecting the Ministry of Forgin Affairs, we are not set able to ign Affairs, we are not yet able to advance anything definite, though it is now considered probable that the resignation of Dr. Salterain will be maintained and accepted. The air continues to be full of wild rumors of ministerial and other changes, which are only denied one moment to be revived the next. The rumors of the resignation of Sr. Dominguez as Prefect of the Capital have been resuscitated for the fortieth time, and, so far as we can see, with as little foundation as ever. Another matter which has been much talked about is a shower of anonymous threatening letters said to have been received by President Cuestas, Sr. Dominguez, and other prominent functionaries, and it is even reported that the authorities have cognisance of a plot to «do away» with the leading factors of the present situation by assassina-tion. Whether this be true or not, the authorities are exercising spe have to be taken with some of them. So far, Sr. Cuestas has been very lenient with them, far too much so remembering that they are a body of men without a single claim to respect or consideration and who entertain the most criminal intentions towards the public welfare. If they cannot be kept quiet by other means, it will be necessary for him to assume dic-tatorial powers in earnest and let them feel the full weight of his au thority. In fact, if he had done so before now, it might have saved the Republic some commotion, and would have been fully endorsed by Yesterday's Razon defends the action of the Government with re gard to the Treasury Certificates, against the adverse criticisms of the Siglo. It points out, with some truth, that though the dissolution of the Chambers and dispersion of of the Chambers and dispersion of the «collectivity» may have improv-ed the political situation, it is use less to indulge in the illusion that it removes the heavy deficit left by the Borda administration and enables the Government to proceed directly to a reduction of taxation. The financial situation inherited by Sr. Cuestas was a very serious one and its cure is a matter of time and patience. He is on the right track says the He is on the right track, says the Rason, and his Government has the enormous advantage over its predecessors that no aspersions can be cast on its financial and administrative probity, which is no small part of the battle. As to no small part of the battle. As to the idea of consolidating the Certificates in circulation and returning to cash payments, that would probably result in more harm than good, and would certainly be less convenient to the Government. The Razon fully approves the financial policy of the Government, though it does not approve of its political course, and it toinks that the solution of the financial problem would be found easier it the Government adopted a broader Government adopted a broader political programme.—In the face of this, it is amusing to read in the Siglo that it is the financial not the political programme of the Gov-ernment that is the most faulty. The Razon of yesterday after-noon confirms the rumors mentioned above relative to a conspiracy to «suppress» Sr Guestas, Sr. Dominguez and Col. Souberau (why the last named 7) and says tout definite information on the matter has been given by the detectives watching the move-ments of the deported «collectivists. in Buenos Aires (is there any limit to the criminality of these men?) Several letters of import ance bearing on the matter have been intercepted, and these have led to the arrest on Wednesday evening, of Sergt. Major Pereyra. Yesterday morning, on the arrival of the river steamer from Buenos Aires, the police arrested the Sra. Pesce (wife of the notorious ex police con tractor) and some compromising letters were found upon her, which were forthwith confiscated. It also appears that she used very violent terms towards the authorities, threatened that there would be a change in twenty days as Julio Herrera was now at the head of the movement, and boasted of having carried much correspondence backwards and forwards. After a searching crossexamination she was set at liberty On account of the revelations made by her and confirmed by the correspondence seized, a strict watch is being kept on certain suspicious persons.

There may be exaggeration in the above, but it is certain that the Government would do well to be on the alert. Men who did not hesitate to bombard a pacific and slumbering city, would hardly hesitate at assassination in pursuit of their criminal intentions. If the Government has certain proof of the existence of such a conspiracy, it should lose no time in laying them before the Argentine Government-despite the friendship of Generals Roca and Levalle for the vile conspirators-and insist on proper steps being taken to call the conspirators to order or to submit them to justice. We do not think that even slack South American law can allow a conspiracy to assassinate to be passed over in silence or to be permitted as a legitimate political resource.

The Failure of the «Terrible» and the «Powerful.»

the authorities are exercising special vigilance, and, we think, rightly so We venture to say that it would not be difficult to trace all these matters, together with the political disquietude of recent days to the machinations of the «collectivists,» who seem determined to interrupt the course of the Government and the recovery of the country by every means in their power. Public opinion is getting very tired of these gentry and their perpetually at their mercy, very severe measures will and the commons, and that the water-tube boiler was not the failure it had.

The Tendency of Excessive Cycling

to Produce Heart Disease. Considering the enormous num-ber of cyclists in the United Kingdom, it is desirable that any contribution to a knowledge of the effects of cycling on health and constitution should be carefully studied by sanitarians, and by cyclists themselves. This mode of recreation has undoubted advantages and attractions, but it also has, like all mundane pleasures, its drawbacks. We know, everyone knows, both men and women who, though three years ago they would have regarded a walk of a mile as an arduous undertaking, not to be lightly at-tempted if a cab or omnibus could be obtained, think no-thing now of a wheel run of twenty or thirty times the distance. In fact, the majority of cyclists are in constant risk of overdoing what, in moderation, would be a healthful exercise and an agreeable pastime. Their main topic of conversation seems to be about «skippingalong.» «scorching,» and «record rivalling » The consequence of these foolish attempts to annihilate time and distance is that no small portion of them most certainly suceed in do-ing themselves personal injury of some sort...The most frequently met with of these are acute dilatation of the heart, and functional derangement, more especially in the case of novices or untrained per sons. There is one section of cy-clists who ought to be particularly careful not to overdo the pastime viz., those who have already reached or passed the middle period of life, and in whom changes may have begun to take place in different organs and tissues, such as the coats of the blood-vessels. - Health

Another Cattle Ship in Trouble.

At Birkenhead Police Court, before Dr. Cornwall and Mr. E. Beazley, Captain Martin Forrest, master of the steamer Straits of Menai, lying in the Alexandra given by Mr. May, Board of Agriculture inspector, by Inspec-tor Pocock, of the R. S. P. U. A., and other officers, to the effect that the steamer landed a cargo of cattle and sheep from the River Plate at Wallasey Stage on May 10. An inspection of the fittings showed that some of the cattle pens were 35 teet by 10 feet instead of the 10 feet by 9 feet size allowed by the order. The stanchions of many of the pens were not fastened to the deck by iron sockets, but were lashed to cross pieces of wood fastened to the ship's rails. The defendant admitted the illegal size of the pens, but contend ed that the stanchions were securely fastened. In the course of the case it was stated by the defendant that ship captains could not comply both with the Argentine and with the British regulations. The captain remarked, too, that he took extra precaution with his fittings, because he had heard of the arbitrariness of the officials in Birkenhead. Mr. Thompson asserted that if ships complied with the British law they would also satisfy the Argentine regulations. The magistrates concluded that a breach of the order had taken place, but they also thought the captain had taken very great precautions, and there was no proof of cruelty to the animals in any way. Defendant must pay a fine of £1 and costs in each of the two cases -£3 18s. in all.

THE WAR.

The war news yesterday was of Manzanillo and Guantanomo (we thought this had been taken long ago) have not yet acced-ed to the order of surrender and it is thought force may have to be employed with them (this is a Spanish tale of doubtful authenticity.) The U. S. Government has accepted an offer of the Spanish Trasatlantic Company to transport the surrendered troops to Spain at a charge of $60 per officer and $30 per man, the vessels being guaranteed from attack (naturally.) The Cunard, Anchor, Hamburg, North German and Wilson lines, syndicated for the purpose made an ofter of $110 and $55 respectively. As soon as General Toral's troops have left, the U. S. Government intends to continue the campaign tends to continue the campaign in Cuba by land with great activity. It is calculated that 100,000 (7) more soldiers will be required before an attack can be made on Havana! General Miles reports having 12 transports at Guantanomo loaded with troops and provisions for the attack on Puerto Rico, and only awaits sail ing orders and the arrival of war vessels to start. General Miles is also said to be urging the U.S. Government to prepare an army for the invasion of Spain! The Spanish continue firmly to believe that an attack by the U. S. fleet is imminent. The panic has extended to the Canaries, many of the residents of which are embarking on passing vessels, and four Spanish transatlantic vessels have put into Gibraltar for safety. There is no news of Admiral Camara's squadron and no one seems to know where it is, One telegram,

The telegrams leave us in the dark as to what is happening in Spain, except that General Foral is being attacked on all sides, both officially and by the all sides, both officially and by the military and the press for having surrendered Santiago, and it is evidently intended to make a scapegoat of the unfortunate man to satisly the popular prejudices. LONDON NOTES

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 22.

A disastrous accident, involving A disastrous accident, involving the loss of more than thirty lives, occurred yesterday at Blackwall. The Duchess of York, with whom was the Duke, went to the Thames Ironworks and Shipbuilding yard to launch the new first class battleship Albion, the keel of which was laid down fifteen months ago. As the great yessel took the water, As the great vessel took the water, a wave, displaced by her weight, rushed up a side creek under a footbridge-a frail structure intended only for the use of workmen-on which some two hundred persons, chiefly women and children, were standing. The returning wave brought back heavy baulks of brought back heavy baulks of timber that had a moment before been lying high and dry, and these carried away the supports of the bridge. Complete collapse followed, and the whole of the occupants were thrown into the water amongst the timber and the wreck of the bridge. Lifebuoys were immediately thrown from the Albion and boots put off to the as-Albion, and boats put off to the assistance of those struggling in the water. Many were rescued little the worse for their immersion. Fifty, in a sadder plight, were re-suscitated. Others again were taken out dead. At a late hour last night the bodies recovered numbered 32.

Accompanied by the Princess, the Prince of Wales yesterday visited University College Hospital and laid the foundation stone of the new building, which is being erect ed through the liberality of Sir Blundell Maple. No such magnificent gift for the sick poor of Lon-don had, his Royal Highness said been made, he believed, since Thomas Guy, in the seventeenth century, established the hospital which bore his name. The Prince earnestly appealed for contributions to the endowment fund.

The transports with the American troops on board arrived off Santiago on Monday. General Shafter and Admiral Sampson landed 17 miles west of Santiago, and held a consultation, which lasted several hours, with the in-surgent leader Calixto Garcia at

He earnestly hoped, with pressure or without it, that Lord Balfour's Commission would be able to give them in the shape of an interim report some indication of the results of their careful and laborious investigation. Warwickshire were left in a honeless position at Tonbridge, the hopeless position at Tonbridge, the Midland county being over 400 behind, and having lost three batsmen in their second innings. Lancashire at Taunton, set Somerset the task of getting 540 to win. Mr. Justice Grantham and a special jury yesterday concluded the hearing of the suit brought by Lord Rothschild, and other trustees of the Alliance Assurance Company, against Sir Tatton Sykes, to recover 1,000l, being an instalment due under a deed which it was alleged Sir Tatton had signed De-fendant denied that he ever signed the deed. At the conclusion of counsels' addresses, and the judge's summing up, the jury deliberated for just over forty minutes, and re-turned a verdict for the defendant, specifically finding that Sir Tatton did not sign the deed. Judgment was entered in accordance with dente- va this finding, with costs.

Mr. Justice Darling had before him yesterday a deputy juror, Mr. Thomas Durham, cashier of Mr. David Greig, of Lordship-lane, who had been sent by his employer to answer to his name and act in his stead. The fact being discovered, the judge said it was a gross contempt of Court, and fined Mr. Durham 5l. Later in the day Mr. Greig appeared in response to an order, was censured by the judge, and fined 251.

Treachery in the Camp.

(A SHORT STORY)

Dermot Redmond's tall form and disconsolate face uppeared at the open window, and be glared in upon them with anything but his oustomary good-humour.

A faint murmur of, <A man with a grievance» from one voice, and «Sir Knight of the Rueful Countenances from another, by no means tended to lighten his apparent burden of sorrow. But he stepped over the low sill, and sat down in the midst of them.

«Aunt Alicia, I shall not go to

«Aunt Alicis, I shall not go to Barrooliffe.»

«Very well, dear boy,» was the placid rejoinder, whereat Dermot looked rather taken aback.

«Did you hear what I said, Aunt Alicia? I shall not go to Barrooliffe.»

«I heard you say it, dear; but as I am perfectly well aware that you will change your mind before the time of departure, I merely answered 'very well.'»

Dermot turned to Fabian Stanhope.

«Fabian, old boy, you and I had better decide to spend our holiday elsewhere—it will be better for all parties concerned.>

«Pardon the suggestion.» interposed Miss Stanhope, «but have you forgotten the invitation you issued to the Moncriefts? Do you propose that the duty of entertaining them during our trip should fall upon us?»

«Hang the Monorieffel» was the impatient rejoinder—he had forgot-ten them for the moment. «I wieh I bad never asked them to join us; Fabian and I could have out away then and had a regular bachelor holi-

Miss Stanhope grew thoughtful for a moment; then she gave a little nod of self satisfaction, and her face became positively radiant.

«My dear boys, you shall bave your bachelor holiday. You shall all be bachelors—the whole quaritete. and we'll be happy, untrammelled

spinsters.»

«Aunt Alicis!» with varied emphasis from three voices in the background ground.

Miss Stanhope gave another of those self-satisfied little node.

«I've hit it at last—the best possible solution. Of course now that our party has swelled so far beyond the original dimensions, the left wing of Wisteria Cottage will be quite inadequate for our accommodation. We must have the right wing too, the whole house, that is—originally two, but now merged into one. The left wing shall be Bachelor's Bungalow, the right shall be Spinsters' Sanctum, and each party shall keep to its own quarters.»

The girls looked triumphant. In their present frame of mind the suggestion pleased them immensely, and it seemed to meet the necessities and it seemed to meet the necessities of the case completely. Shy Eileen need no longer be oppressed with dread at the thought of being constantly in the society of, and under the necessity of making conversation for «those dreadful men»; and to Tony and Dermot the plan appeared the most desirable that could possibly have been formulated. I all and sibly have been tormulated. Lal and Fabian were not consulted—they were children still in the minds of

"Dull just because we shall have no tiresome men to entertain or be bothered by! Oh, Miss Stanhope, why should we be dull? Quite unnecessary—imposible. I think it's a perfectly delightful arrangement.

That she really considered it so and was not merely expressing the opinion for politeness' sake, was evident from Lesbia Vane's face and tone. The details of the proposed scheme had only been unfolded to her since she met the Stanhope party at the London terminus that morn ing to proceed to Barrocliffe. It was well that she took to it so kindly or fresh complications might have arisen, and poor Miss Stanbope been driven to the verge of distraction. But, of course, they knew—had all known from the first — that it was just what Leebia would enjoy, staunch advocate as she was of woman's superiority and woman's independence.

She entered into the spirit of the prank, not with any sympathy for Eileen in her shyness, not with the childish venom of Lal, nor the mischievous delight of Tony, but with earnestness and sincerity, as one desirous of proving the stability of a theory.

«The men will follow us in a day or two, I suppose? she remarked tentatively; for the first-class car-risge held only the five ladies.

«No, they are travelling down with us now, rejoined Miss Alicia. «They are in the first smoking carriage. That is to say, Dermot and Fabian are—the Monoriefts will join them at Meresham Junction.

Dermot said he should look in at us at the Junction, remarked

Tony's bead was raised a trifle higher.

«Very kind of Dermot,» was her saroastic comment. «But he need not trouble; there are five of us—no fear of either nervousness or lone-

«Just to see that we are all right, you know, » urged Eileen in her brother's defence.

«What does he suppose would happen to us? With the exception of the possibility of the flooring of the carriage giving way."

«Tony! Would it—does it ever?» Lal olutohed at the elbow-rest nearest to her, and glanced apprehensively down at the space between the two seats. «I believe I have heard of such catasthophes, but fortunately they are rare, and—Here's the Junction, and here are the boys. Both of them are coming, I declare, Send them away, Aunt Alicial»

To Messrs. James Buchanan & Co. Scotch Whisky Merchants, London, E. C.

Gentlemen:
I am glad you have brought the matter before me, that a Scotch Whisky is being sold in the Colonies entitled House of Lords Scotch Whisky.
This may be to a certain extent misleading to the general public.
You are the only Firm who supplies this Department with Scotch Whisky in bottle, and I know nothing of any other Whisky sold on the market as House of Lords. You are at liberty to make use of this fact if you deem it desirable.
I am, Gentleman, Yours faithfully, WILLIAM AGGAS, Manager Refreshment Dept.
