THE "REACCION" AND OUR LAW SUIT.

We have already mentioned that the Reaccion of Friday evening last devoted a lengthy article to a highly energetic delence of our position, both as regards the sen-tence of the Correctional Judge, and as regards the origin of the whole Although its article is too long for us to translate, we can give our readers some idea of the contents, especially as it opens one or two points which have hitherto escaped attention.

As regards the sentence of the Correctional Judge condemning us to a fine of $1000, the Reaction condenses its opinion as follows:— That it violates the clearest and e most conclusive terms of the « law; -- that it substitutes an act of revenge for an act of justice;— and that the spirit in which the sentence is issued implies an e open threat against the guaran tees of the press.

 As regards the utter inapplicability of Art. 360 of the Criminal Code, invoked by the Judge, to our case, seeing that the Article explicitly excepts publications in newspapers or periodicals, the Reaccion, we need hardly say, sheres the opinion of every one of our contemporaries which has dealt with the matter. This, indeed, is too transparent to need argument. There is a special legislation and a special mode of proceedure applicable to press onences, and these have not been followed in our case, so that, says our contemporary, even admitting for the sake of argument the existence of the press offence against the prosecutor of Mr. Denstone, the Judge has committed a flagrant violation of the penal laws >

With regard to the alleged soffence against the Tribunals, which the Judge—barely concealing his disappointment because not one of the Fiscals to whom the case was referred thought fit to take the matter up—brings forward as an additional motive for our condemnation, the Reaccion points out that here again the Judge has clearly exceeded his powers and violated the law, since, according to the Codes of the Republic, prosecution for of-fence against the Public Powers can only be initiated by the Fiscal, and in such case trial by jury is imperative, neither of which has happened in our case. Our prosecution was by a private person for alleged personal injur-ies, and it is therefore obvious that offence against the public powers cannot be dragged in to influence the sentence, and, even suppos-ing such offence existed, the Judge was not entitled to take it into consideration in a private prosecution. find a reason for the obvious preju-dice shown by the Correctional Jud-ge in his sentence and bluntly accus-

The Reaccion is not at a loss to es him of being animated by desire to punish us on account of our re-marks finding fault with the ad ministration of the laws regarding murderers. This is a point on which we prefer not to express an

Returning now to the original motive of our prosecution—namely our protests against the acquittal of Carvalho for the death of Mr. Lewis -the Reaccion takes our and was wanting in the three essentials necessary for the legal establishment of such a plea; namely, illegitimate aggression, rea-sonable necessity of the means employed to repel the attack, and want of sufficient provocation on the part of the attacked. We quote the ollowing sentences from our contemporary, the application of which is obvious: - At this rate, it will never be possible to criticise, censure or discuss the miquity into which the justice of this earth unfortunately so often falls, for it is obvious that every sentence, condemning or absolving against law or reason, is necessarily interest. necessarily intimately related to those victimised or benefited by the error. . Justice Rovira does not satisfy any honest or legi-timate interest in his sentence. . . The public censure or criticism of the acts of the government or of the tribunals of justice, does not imply an attack or defamation against any private person who may have been unjustly prejudiced or benefited by those acts.... To impede the censure of so patent and manifest an error of understanding and of conscience as this (meaning the absolution of Carvalho) is nothing less than a direct attack on the most valued conquest of the age, the liberty of the press.... The sentences which receive the stamp of the conventional truth of the laws, may not be attackable in the sense of destroying their effects when they create rights or absolve from blame and penalty; but they are and eternally will be attackable from the point of view of the doctrine which they violate or the iniquity which they enshrine. This is the ele-ment on which history counts for example and correction when other coercive measures are impossible. Our contemporary concludes its vigorous defence—for which we again thank it—by saying that the only persons who had a right to be offended by the acerbity of the articles in The Montevideo Times that provoked our prosecution, were the members of the jury who saw in a pretended buffet the elegitimate self defences that procured an acquittal to which no Judge would assent. This is precisely our own opinion.

In conclusion, we must again comment on the very peculiar state of the Uruguayan law which compels a Judge to deliver sentence in conformity with a verdict which he recognises as false, bad or immoral, thereby violating his conscience. In this lies the kernel of the whole matter, for if the Judges had had the power, which they should have had, to set aside the obviously false verdict acquitting Carvalho, and with which none of them agreed, justice would not have been evaded, nor would the present trouble have

POLITICAL NOTES.

There was a slight recrudescence of alarmist rumors, of the familiar type, on Saturday night and Sunday, of which our contemporaries—for want of something better with which to fili their columns -made the most, but the convalescent tone of pubopinion is shown by little effect they had, and in fact they are becoming little more than a matter for contempt. The resource is becoming exhausted. The Si glo an ornes very pompously that the «collectivist» invasion is definitely fixed for September 8. So far as we can make out the 8. So far as we can make out the whole mountain has been created out of the molehill that Dr. Julio Herrera has sold his camp lands in Paysandu. The matter may be dismissed without further comment.

A strange and rather incredible story has gone the round of our contemporaries to the effect that same t resident Cuestas has given orders that any person, making the contemporaries of disloyally against any ducts. one in an official position should at once be arrested, the object of this being, it was said, to check the spread of alarmist rumors. The absurdity of such an order is manifest, and so far as we can make out the whole thing is a mare's nest, arising out of a trivial incident between the Chief of the Staff and Col. Bernabe Herrera. There were rumors that the latter had been arrested in conformity with the order mentioned, but they also were false.

The Decree has been issued formally appointing Dr. J. L. Cuestas - eldest son of President Cuestas - as Presidential part with equal vigor, pointing out that our protest was justified, not merely because it coincided with the opinion of all the Judges who intervened in the trial, but also because the plea of self-defence which obtained the acquittal, rested solely on the interested affirmation of the accused man,

President make it appropriate in The study of that very important matter the port question seems to make but slow progress in the Committee of the Council of State. The Minister of Foment has been cited to confer with the Committee.

on the matter next Thursday. Commenting on the recent par-tial reforms in the Stamps Laws, the Financial News of recent date echoes our remarks and adds the following: - «To the English business man, who only requires a penny stamp for re-ceipts of any amount from £2 up-wards, this tariff will still appear excessive, but it is not unlikely that in course of time a further reduction will take place. Two shillings certainly seems a heavy duty to pay on a £100 receipt. . . . Ordinary cheques still require a stamp of 5 cents, while foreign cheques require a stamp of no less than 50 cents. The latter stamp in particular is considered a gross imposition by the mercantile world. But the greatest hardship of all results from the clauses of the present law relating to legal documents.... The law as it at present stands is so complicated that the only satisfactory course will be to wipe it all out and make a fresh start on a simpler, more rational, and more modern basis. The Revising Committee has the law at present under consideration, and it is to be hoped it will deal with it with an unsparing hand. The laws, in their present state, do not encourage English traders to settle in the country or to place their money

ARGENTINE AFFAIRS.

GENERAL ROCA'S SPEECH.

Owing to the great interest taken in the speech made by General Roca, the Argentine President-elect, at the banquet offered him last week by the finance and commerce of Buenos Aires, we reproduce it below, together with the speech made by the Chairman of the Banquet, Mr. R. B. Thurburn, Manager of the London & R. P. Manager of the London & R. P. Bank. We avail ourselves for the purpose of the slightly condensed translation given by the B. A. He-

Mr. Thurburn said:

General Roca, I have great plea-sure in offering you this banquet, and I congratulate you on the high post to which your fellow-citizens have elected you, assuring you at the same time of the great satisfac-tion with which the banking, railway and commercial interests regard your elevation to the office of First Magistrate of the Nation. Considering the difficulties which the Republic formerly experienced in the election of your predeces-sors, it is worthy of note that this is the first time that your supporters and even your opponents unite their votes for the prosperity of your government.

I wish to interpret the sentiments which animate this meeting and assure you that we are persuaded that from your noble character and the experience you have gained in so many years of political strife, we may expect a just, orderly and ample government without exclusions, and that the most fitting men in the country will be placed in the posi-tions which will enable them to cooperate with you for its advance-ment and prosperity. You will for the second time govern a country of abundant resources for the good of all its inhabitants. Its salubrious climate and the traditional hospital ity of its people continue to attract a labouring population which hopes to better its condition; and for eign capital is seeking productive application which at the same time developes the resources of the country. Further both, General, by laws which guarantee their protec-

This fair and fertile country, capable, it may be said, of being the granary of the world, ought to be for that reason one of the staunch-est advocates of the interchange of commodities. We have no doubt that you will be in favour of a gradual reduction of the prohib-live duties that hinder the expansion of the country and at the same time provoke reprisals which tend to close certain markets to the consumption of Argentine pro-

As an experienced statesman and soldier you will know how to estimate the dangers and disasters resulting from international quarreis, and we have every confidence that you will maintain peace without sacrificing the d gnity of the Nation. May peace, industry, liberty, justice and progress be the worthy and constant objects of your government. These are the ardent wishes that I am the means of conveying to you on again con-gratulating you in the name of this assembly of gentlemen who repre-sent the capital, labour and active intelligence of the Republic.

honour it has done me. Few citizens on the eve of taking office have been so honoured. This act is of deep significance; it is a true plebiscite of the commercial interests of the Nation.

You represent the most impartial and conservative elements of society: you rarely make a false judgment, as you do not base your action on phantasies but on hard facts, and your opinion is valuable for any governor.

Our late political, financial and economic crises, brought on by want of foresight and inexperience and by a desire to become perfect all at once, have left in the way stumbling-blocks and pit-falls which must be removed with a strong hand to make smooth the way of the country towards pro-

I must apply all my energy to this task. Do not expect a prodigy, like Providence, but a modest, cheap, administratively strict and orderly Government, which alone can re establish our finances and consolidate our credit in Europe, attracting immigration and capital.

The world is changing, economic questions are to the fore everywhere; the commercial struggle for new markets pervades the whole earth; and woe to the people that remain stationary, producing nothing on fertile territories !

Our country, if it has suffered re-verses which have retarded its progress, has yet advanced, and in spite of everything we are richer, stronger, and freer than we were. It is here that all peoples have contributed to found a new active race, which has all the elements to make the River Plate the theatre of a great civilization.

Gentlemen, one of my first dut-ies will be the maintenance of internal and external peace, friend-ship and commercial relations with all nations, especially those on our

The large fleet of the Republic is necessary for the defence of the extensive Patagonian coast, and if its militia has been organized it was not with any intention to attack anyone nor to make wars of conquest, but to drill the youth of Argentina, carrying out a constitutional duty and inspiring the public with confidence, so that our honour and integrity could not be wounded with impunity. The most serious question at this moment, and one of those which are uppermost in the minds of the people on both sides of the Cordillera is that of the arrangement of the boundary with Chile, which, after such a long and annoying dispute, is now being brought to an end. My inner-most conviction is that it must conclude quietly and equitably for both nations. In the existing treaties the solution is clear and explicit: it suffices to read them over with calmness and serenity to convince oneself of this truth.

It is possible that before the 12th. of October you will have the satisfaction of seeing dissipated that shadow which lies on the Andes, causing uncertainty and the fear of a ruinous and fraticidal war on both sides of the mountain. And then we shall be able to dedicate ourselves entirely, without any fear of being interrupted by warlike alarms, to useful and productive tasks. Our greatness lies in the arts of peace and the nation that can use the plough can buy the spear. To the arts of peace those small and beautiful British islands, the permanent school of liberty and common sense, owe their immense wealth and their extensive power Gentlemen, I have the deepest faith in the future of the Republic. My past experiences will help me not to fall into error. Only those who do not take part in the arena but remain in the balconies to criticize are free of the dust of conflict and never make mistakes. My greatest ambition will be to leave the Capitol for my home amid your applause. Gentlemen. I drink to the sperity of Argentine Commerce, and to each and all of you.

Our English contemporaries in Buenos Aires are not all infatuated over General Roca and his afterdinner promises, as may be seen by the following remarks from the Times of Argentina of Aug. 27.—
«The object of the banquet was clearly defined in Mr. Thurburn's speech, which showed that the foreigners who have invested an enor-mous capital in this country desired to honour the President-élect, who is known to have the power, if he has the will, to remedy the great evils from which capital suffers, and to receive an assurance from his own lips that he was willing to exercise that power for the public good. It is a matter of history that those evils originated in the system of government followed by General Roca from 1880 to 1886, and which was perpetuated by his imposing Dr. Juarez Celman upon the coun-Gentlemen, It is not without a feeling of uncertainty that I raise my glass, fearing that I may not have command of words sufficientially eloquent to express my thanks to the National Commerce for the clared, upon assuming his post, that the motto of his Government was «Peace and Administration.» He secured peace to the country by repressive measures tainly needed), and gave it an ad-ministration of the worst possible kind. His term of office was a period of frightful corruption and of wastefulness and extravagance in public expenditure, resulting in a great addition to the foreign debt and in the establishment of an in-convertible currency. During Gen-eral Roca's Administration, also, the people were deprived of the free exercise of the suffrage, and that privilege they have not yet succeeded in recovering, and every election in this Democratic Representative Republic, whether of Presidents Governors, Legislators or even Municipal Councillors, is a delusion and a fraud....The General displayed in his speech the astateness that is generally attributed to him. He accepted the honours offered to him as his personal due and as a general vote in his favour. His acts of misgovernment during his six years in the presidency he described as youthful indiscretions, the fruit of inexperience—on the part of the nation! He means, however, to set all things straight that he turned topsyturvy, but for this purpose he will require the aid of more foreign capital!! Not a word did he say, however, about lessening the burdens on trade and commerce, or reducing the heavy duties on foreign merchandise-for the very good reason that, at the very moment that Mr. Thurburn was penning his suggestion to that effect, the General's faithful followers in Congress were secretly piling on the duties to prohibition point! The General says that the Nation is constantly growing richer and stronger and enjoying more in-dependence and liberty. What are the signs of this progress? Enormous and increasing foreign and internal debts, an insolvent Exchequer, struggling to provide for its necessities by «popular» or forced loans; a general and almost unsurpassed depression of trade; the abstention of the people from the exercise of electoral rights; the appropriation of the Provincial Governments to the uses of family parties; military conscription and the proposed for ced naturalization of foreigners. As regards the boundary question with Chile, the General expressed the hope, entertained by all sen-sible people, that peace will be preserved, but he intimated to Chile that Argentina stands by the Treaty, the whole Treaty, and nothing but the Treaty, and is fully prepared to defend her right by land and sea. We have had a speech the more, but nothing is changed. Happy is the nation that expecteth nothing! SUNDRIES.

-We are asked to give publicity to a request that all the ladies and gentlemen who took part in Jeannettes will kindly pre-sent themselves at Mr. Fitzpatrick's photographic studio in Calle Rincon, at 9 a. m. punctually to-morrow (Wednesday) morning.

«Santa I Lima, so we suppose that the traditional storm which accompa-nies this saint in her travels cannot be far off, after which we may look for spring weather.

The telegraphic sensation of the day is to be found in the annoudcement of a letter which the Czar of Russia would seem to have addressed to all the European powers, suggesting an International Conference for the discussion of peace and general disarmament. The Czar says, During the last twenty years the desire of a general pacification has become greater than ever in the conscience of civilised nations, and tne preservation of peace has been one of the primordial objects of international policy. The great nations have celebrated alliances with each other in order to guarantee peace, and in its name have armed themselves on an unprecedented scale, omitting no sacrifice for the continual increase of their military forces. but these efforts have not produced the desired effect. And now the cost of their great naval cons-tructions sterilises their economic progress, and makes the present form of armed peace an insupportable burden. To put a limit to these perpetually increasing armaments, and find the means of causing to disappear the calamities which threaten the entire world, this is the supreme duty of every power. This noble initiative of the Czar is said to have been received most favorably throughout Europe, and especially in Gt. Bri-tain. Whether it will lead to any practical result, remains to be

LONDON NOTES

Monday, August 1. Bismarck died late Saturday night at Friedrichsruhe surrounded by his family. His condition suddenly took a turn for the worse in the afternoon, and Dr. Schweninger, who had gone to Berlin, was recalled and reached the bedside only just before the end. The Prince suffered much and became unconscious two hours before he pasted away. The Em-peror, who was yachting in Norway, was at once informed and is returning to Germany to attend the funeral, which is expected to take place on Thursday. The remains of the Prince, who was eighty-three years of age, will, it is thought, be buried provisionally in the woods at Friedrichsruh. A military guard of honour was ordered to go to the Castle from Altona by the Kaiser himself.

Terms of peace have been sub-mittee to the Government at Madrid for approval. M. Cambon, the Prench Ambassador at Washington, was appointed Minister Plenipotentiary by Sprin to discuss the proposals of the American Gov-renment with the President.

The Prince of Wales, who was accompanied by the Princess of Wales, the Princess Victoria of Wales, and Prince Nicholas and Princess Marie of Groece, was removed from Marlborough House on Saturday to the Isle of Wight, As he passed through the streets on his way to Paddington he was recognised in his ambulance car-riage and loudly cheered. A similar demonstration met him at the railway station, and he repeatedly acknowledged the salutes of the bystanders. After he had been carried into the Royal saloon of the special train the latter started for Portsmouth, which was reached shortly before 6 o'clock. The Prince was at once conveyed on board the Osborne, which with the Royal party fortwith left for Cowes. A bulletin issued at Marlborough House yesterday stated that the Prince's journey had been accomplished in perlect comfort and safety. Yesterday the Queen visited the Prince of Wales on board the Osborne, and stayed nearly an

Buchanan Blend Scotch Whisky

HOUSE OF LORDS.

Refreshment Department, June 24, 1896
To Messrs James Buchanan & Co.Scotch Whisky Merchants, London, E. O.
Gentlemen:
I am glad you have brought the matter before me, that a Scotch Whisky is being sold in the Colonies entitled «House of Lords» Scotch Whisky.
This may be to a certain extent misleading to the general public.
You are the only Firm who supplies this Department with Scotch Whisky in bottle, and I know nothing of any other Whisky sold on the market as «House of Lords.»
You are at liberty to make use of this fact if you deem it desirable.
I am, Gentleman, Yours faithfully,
WILLIAM AGGAS, Manager
Refreshment Dept.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

Refreshment Department, January 26th,

To Messrs. James Buchanan & Co., Scotch Whisky Distillers, London, E. C. Gentlemen:
Herewith please find order for a Cask four fine old Scotch Whisky, and also for Special Buchanans in bottles as usual. I have pleasure in giving you this order for bulk Whisky, as your Special quality, has given such satisfaction in this Department, and I shall hope to continue ordering same. rtment, and I buse of dering same.
I am, Gentlemen, Yours faithfully,
WILLIAM AGGAS, Manager,

(A SHORT STORY)

I don't think I shall ever forge the expression in those dark eyes; it haunted me for many a day, so hopeless and despairing was it. It was the same kind of look that a dumb animal you have wounded gives you, a mute, reproachful pleading which made me feel utterly sick with

I went to a dance that evening, but that little pale face seemed to go with me, and although I met a number of very nice girls, they were so prossic-ally healthy and cheerful that they were commonplace in comparision, and bored me excessively with their lively prattle. I came away early, and spent the rest of the night composing a letter to be given to the child directly she entered the Gallery the next morning, but to my chagrin she did not come that day, nor the next, nor the next. For a whole week that missive, containing my abject apologies and the expression of my pro-found contrition, went into my coatpocket every morning, and came out every evening to be looked at and wondered over, as to how much longer it would await delivery. At the end of that time I concluded to throw it in the stove.

My picture was nearly finished, but I was heartily sick of it now, and almost bated the eternal smile and almost bated the eternal smile upon those cherry lips.

«Judith» returned to her own place and filled the ugly blank on the wall which her absence had created; the label «Copiasi,» bane of picture-lovers, went off to hang in place where some other gem ought to be, but the covered, unfinished copy still remained unclaimed upon the fair unknown's easel. It afforded me no clue as to her name and address. no clue as to her name and address; that she was «lnglese» I learnt from the custode, who further told me be believed she had several copies of different subjects for sale, but he could give me no more exact information about them, nor was I able, with my hasty glimpse of the one speci-men of her work that I had seen, to recognise the style again, the Uffizi being by no means deficient in bad

I was much annoyed at coming to this deadlock, for the more I am belified in a matter, the more absolu-tely convinced do I become that it is desirable, I would say essential, to carry it through. Besides, although I told myself a hundred times a day I was a fool to bother any more about it, I felt that I should not have any satisfaction in my Lebrun, nor enjoy a quiet pipe until I had, metaphorically speaking, grovelled in the dust at the little copyist's feet. So if only for my own selfish ends, I resolved to do my best to find her, and took to wandering about the streets of to wandering about the streets of Florence, if by chance I might meet her. Several times I faucied I saw her in the distance, and hurried after the black figure only to find I had been pursuing some one quite ditteren.

I hunted round for about a month, and was beginning to get rather hopeless about my quest, though a dogged kind of never-say-die feeling kept me to it, when one afternoon I walked out through the Porta Romana and along the Viale dei Colli towards San Miniato, It was a delicious spring day, and many of the gay Florentines were enjoying, like myself, the sweet, light air and bright sunshine. I strolled as far as the Piazzale Michelangelo, with its great bronze «David» in the centre, and swinging myself on the parapet at the north-west corner, took out my block and began to sketch. The view of the city that day lying at my feet is as clear to me now, years after, as if I had seen it only yesterday. I am not much of a bands at description in words, it a hands at description in words, it comes much easier to me with pencil than pen, so I will only say that Florence lookedd more like a heavenly than an earthly city under the clear blue April sky. A sprinkle of snow still lingered on Monte Morello, while far away on the Lucchesi mountains it shops in dazzling masses. I love that faint touch of snow on the hill-tops, and always think the City of Flowers most beautiful when she has the fringe of her white robe she has the tringe of her white robe remaining.

I sketched for about an hour, then stopped, letting my eye rove idly over the view before me. All at once something caught my attention. I looked and looked again. Among the irregular roots of the Via San Guseppe, just below the Piazzale, rose a squat little tower with an open loggia, and above that a flat root with a machiculated. machicolated parapet. There, in a sunny corner on the roof, sat a girl, and it was a familiar air about the figure which first attracted my attention, I took out my glasses, and my surmise became a certainty. Into my pocket went those opera-glasses again in a twinkling; the block, with its half-finished sketch, fell to the ground, off the wall I jumped, and down the bill strode as fast as my legs would take me. No beating about the bush. I promise you I had hunted during some weeks for a particular person, and bavingby a lucky chance found that person, I did not intend to let any idiotic conventionalities make merun the risk of losing her again.

I went straight to the bouse - being the only one with a tower it was easy to mark—and seeing just opposite a small greengrocer's shop, enquired there where the young English lady lived, who used to go every morning to paint. I know something of Ital-ians and their ways, and felt certain that it, as I thought probable, she resided in the house with the tower, her appearance and babits would be
