THE ARGENTINE-CHILIAN BOUNDARY MUDDLE,

The following, quoted from the Times of Argentina, will give as clear an idea as is possible in a short space, of the present state of the tedious boundary dispute be-tween Argentina and Chile. The map of the Prensa, referred to in the article, was reproduced in the Razon of yesterday, with other dala

The Prensa has published a map showing the boundary lines pro-posed by the Argentine and Chilian experts respectively between the 38th and 52nd degrees of latitude, where the divergencies between them occur. The most important of these, in consequence of the large area (38,000 square kilometres) of the territory comprised between the two lines and its value for colonization purposes, occurs between latitude 45 and 48; this area includes Lake Buenos Aires; between the 41st and 45th degrees, the disputed area is 21 500 square kilometres, commencing at the South of Lake Nahuel Huapi and including Lakes Puelo and General Paz and a part of the 16 of October colony in Chubut. The total area of the territory which Sr. Barros Arana thus claims for Chile but which Dr. Moreno declares that the boundary treaty and protocols give to Argentina is 81,000 square kilometres So far as mere size is concerned, this is a very important difference, when we compare it with that of some Euro-pean States:-for instance, Portupan states, --for instance, i bitu gal is only a little larger, its area being 88 600 square kilometres, Switzerland is 41,000. Bel-gium 29,000, Denmark 38,000, Greece 65 000, Holland 33,000, England and Wales 82,000. Compared however, with the total area of the Argentine Republic, the difference is insignificant, and it is still more so from the fact that the disputed territory is mostly uninhabited and unsusceptible of cultivation. In fact, considered merely as a question of value, the territory is not worth the expenditure that has already been incurred in disputing the tracing of the boundary line, lo, whose generally not alraid but, of course, there is a point of honour involved in the question, and neither nation can tamely submit to surrender that which is given to it by existing treaties. The map referred to shows clear-ly that Dr. Moreno has drawn al-most a straight line from North to ich, we are wledged, a f his counred. If those South in continuation of the line of ect-and it the Cordillera, which, farther north, is a continuous chain, forming a well defined line, in respect of which the two experts are agreed. blame must The Chilian expert, on the other hand, has traced his boundary line ther than to any means according to the «division of the waters, without any regard to the line of the highest peaks summits, though the treaty uires harmony between the requires harmony between the two, the line of the mountains being obviously the natural boundbetween the two countries, агу the advantage of adopting a mountain boundary being that it is fixed

Constitution, therefore, was delib-erately made a better ship, with a better crew, and better guns than the best ship of her class known in any other navy. In the fight with the Guerrière she fired a broadside weighing 684 pounds against her opponent's 556 pounds. No wonder, then, that her first full discharge practically settled the business. It was just the same in her encounter with the Java. The inleresting point is that the same system is pursued to day. This early designer, says the writer of the article, «aimed at advantages similar to those we are now seeking in better guns, greater speed, and greater cruising capacity.» It is needless to say that what was sought was found in the American ships that were sent to meet the fleets of Spain. It is worth everybody's while to inquire whether the superiority is maintained in regard to all other navies of the world. Type for type, have the Americans still managed to secure the best ship? It is notorious that they think they have, and that they affirm the superiority of their armour in resisting power, and of their guns in penetrating power, and even in the weight of metal that can be thrown at one discharge. Sir Nathaniel Barnaby is said to have told an American inter-viewer that defensive armour had practically been abandoned for certain classes of ships, and that, in this respect, they were little better than eggshells. The way in which the American designers have managed to place two tiers of beavy aged to place two tiers of beavy guns for keel fire in some of their ships, in place of the one fier usually seen, is suggestive to say the least. The quality of the Amer-ican gunnery is admittedly quite as remarkable as the quantity. The battles have been won by marksmanship in the first place. It must be remembered that some of the best quick firing guns, large and small, from the Hotch-kiss to the Maxim, are of American kiss to the Maxim, are of American invention. Another of the lessons, if not of the discoveries of the war, is that every plank of wood on a modern ship may become a death trap for her crew. The naval Bow-ers of the world have at last had the great experimental conflict for which they have so long waited, and it will be their fault it they fail to turn every single one of its teach-ings to account.

provoking loud protests from the Italian press, which claims that the whole nation should not be made responsible for the act of a madman. -Owing to the great success of the clever conjuror Sr. Watry at the Cibils Theatre, he will give two more performances on Saturday and Sunday next, at which he will introduce some new tricks and illusions. -The anniversary of Chilian independence will be celebrated in the Chilian Legation tomorrow by a grand reception and ball, to which the elite of local society have been invited.

-Sunday next being the first anniversary of the peace of last year, the public buildings will be illuminated, and the President will

-Says the B. A. Herald:-The brother of Oardinal Vaughan has come to this country in order to collect subscriptions for the building of a new chapel attached to the Roman Catholic Cathedral in London, £12,000 is needed to build this chapel, of which £5000 is already collected. Cardinal Vaughan has addressed a letter introducing his brother to the Archbishop of Buenos Aires, and commending the good work.

-Information received at Van-couver from Australia says that on the shore of Lake Wynn a nugget the shore of Lake Wynn a nugget of gold of extraordinary size has been tound. It weights 115 pounds and is worth $32,000 gold. The find has caused great sensation in all the region, and thousands of people have congregated at Lake Wynn in hopes of finding more gold. —Everyone is now looking for-ward to the «Calico Cinderella» to be held next Wednesday. It is the first dance of this description that first dance of this description that has been given here-at all events for many years - and therefore will altract on account of the novelty. We understand that the gentlemen as well as the ladies are expected to go in fancy costume. It is called «calico» on the supposition that the dresses will be of an inexpensive character, Fancy dress, we need hardly say, is optional, not customary, but it is hoped that the large majority will resort to it.

-The telegrams report terrible hurricanes in the West Indies. At Barbadoes 200 persons have been killed and 40,000 (f) left without shelter, a great part of the island having been devastated. The town of Kingston, capital of St. Vincent, has been laid in ruins, and 300 persons killed. The storm was also felt at Santa Lucia and at Guadalupe, with loss of life and destruction to property. In addition to the damage on land, there have been numerous ship wrecks. (The above numbers are probably exaggerated.)

The Chilian -The Italian Government is finding in the assassination of the Empress of Austria an expapers seem to be more of a jingo cuse for the arrest, unot mereturn, and are doing their worst to excite the people into a bellicose temper. The Governments seem to ly of known anarchists, but of socialists and of its political opponents. This is absurd and will more harm than good. - We note judicial announce-the reorganisation of the public our contemporary, «that this situal tion which everyone recognises as a great advance on its predecessor, is filled with doubts and mistrusts, and it is a matter of general con viction that public peace does not possess the necessary stability, and that even if it did its effects are and will be, until there is a radical modification, the same as if we were facing war with the «collectivism» which is redoubling its efforts in view of the excision produced in the breast of the «colorado» party. Sr. Cuestas should affirm peace by means of a partial change of ministry which will take per-sonalities of the first rank to the Government House, thus dissipating all doubts and reestab-lishing public confidence.» The above is worth some re-mark. The premisses of the Siglo are undeniable, and give a very correct picture of the situation. But we cannot in the least agree with modification, the same as if we were made. we cannot in the least agree with its very lame and impotent con-clusion. The fault does not, in our opinion, lie with the Government opinion, he with the Government or the Ministers, which have done all—or nearly all—that could be reasonably expected of them to redeem the Republic. Sr. Cuestas might change his Ministers a dozen times—he might even ask the Siglo to appoint his Cabinet—and still there would not take place the transformation which our contemstill there would not take place the transformation which our contem-porary imagines. For our part, we do not know who are the •personalities of the first rank to whom it alludes, who would work this miracle, nor has it itself yet been able to name them No; it is not in the Cab-inet or in any part of Sr. Ouestas' policy - though we do not pretend that either is absolutely flawless--that the key is to be found to the riddle The fault lies in quite another direction -- it lies in the people themselves and espa-cially in the «colorado» party; in that section of them which cannot rest quiet under an honest and rewith rest quiet under an nonest and the formatory administration. The Stiglo torgets—though it cer-tainly bas no reason to forget— that the very virtues which it justly attributes to Sr. Cuestas' Govern-

MONTEVIDEO FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1898. Saints Cornelius and Cyprian. - 259 days past, 106 to the end of the year. POLITICAL NOTES. In the Council of State, on Wednesday, approval was given to a Minute, on behalt of the Finance Committee, asking the Executive to consult the opinion of the Na-tional Department of Agricul-ture, and of the Rural Asso ciation, on the vexed question of the temporary free importation of wheat for the benefit of the mill-ing industry. We may here add that the agriculturists of several other Departments have adhered other Departments have achieved to the protest already presented against the proposal. The rest of the sitting was occupied with con tinuation of the Budget discussion, with which-further progress was made.

It is stated that the Committee of Finance of the Council of State has practically agreed on the modificapractically agreed on the module tions it will propose in the Bill for the consolidation of the Treasury Certificates, and it is also under-stood that the Government accepts the same. These consist of, ele-vation of the bonus to 36 %, with a reduction of 3 % part month a reduction of 3 % per month, reduction of the amortisation to 1 % per annum, and bi monthly service instead of quarterly. The Report will be presented to the Council for discussion next week or as soon as the Budget is done

The Government has called upon the Pretect of Salto to clear himself from certain charges of abuses of authority and electorabuses of authority and elector-al fraud brought against him, by the press of the Department. It has also ordered an enquiry to be instituted into charges of cruel-ity in the Urban Battalion made by the Nacional and other papers. In previous regimes the press might howl until the skies turned green before the Govern-ment took any notice of its denun-and course of a stream may be changed by various accidents. The question involved is not, however, one of natural boundaries (as it might and should have been), it is a question of treaty obligations binding upon Chile as well as upon Argentina, and, as the two experts differ about the direction which the boundary line ought to take in obedience to the stipulations of the treaty and subsequent protocols, the dispute should be referred at once to arbitration, for the more it is discussed between the experts, by the press of the two countries and by the two Govern ments, the more bitter and danger ous will it become. There is not the slightest possibility of an amicable give-and take arrangement, for the Chilian Government is not strong enough to make any concessions, and, even if there were no interand, even if there were no infer-national engagements in existence for settling the matter by arbitra-tion, it would be necessary to en-ter into one, war being the only alternative -a war which would be ruinous to both countries, from which neither could obtain any permanent advantage and which would not settle the point at issue, for arbitration would still be necessary to fix a practicable line of frontier-

The United States Navy.

An article in «The Atlantic Monthly, » published a few months before the outbreak of hostilities with Spain, lays down very clearly the principle on which the Americans build their ships of war. It is simply to go one better class for class, on all existing types in foreign navies. It is no novelty, for it was adopted in the very infancy of the American navy, by the designer of the fa-mous Constitution. alf we build our ships of the same size as the Europeans, he said, «they, having so great a number of them, we shall always be behind them. -If Chile and Argentina come to war, the press of both countries will be mainly to blame, as the press was to blame for provoking the Spanish American war. -According to telegrams from Santiago, a British naval officer there has given the opinion that the Ohilian navy will «walk over «the Argentine as easily as the Japanese did over the Chinese or the American over the Spanish. —Of course it had to come. After nearly a month of dry weather, the mere announcement of a func-tion by the Entertainment Society was quite sufficient to cause rain to fall, and down it came in the afternoon with a punctuality wor-thy of a better cause. Certainly, up to the time of writ-ting the rain was not very serious, but there was evidently worse in store, and we will not answer for what happened later. -Our contemporaries are again calling attention to the insecurity of the incomplete Jens building in Calle 25 de Mayo, between Zabala and Solis. It is certainly extraordinary that neither the Munici-pality nor any other of the authorit-ies should be able to take steps with a building which is a constant threat to public safety as well as a hideous eyesore in a central thoroughfare.

-All the jubilee festivities in Austria have been entirely suspended, and the Emperor has pended, and the Emperior has announced his intention of retiring into strict seclusion for six months. Lucheni, the assassin of the Empress, has asked that his trial may take place at Lausanne, that being the only Canton where capital punish-ment is in force -he not merely expects but actually desires to be

Hooper, daughter of the well known resident of this city-The event will be a social one of considerable interest, and we hast-en to present our best wishes for the future happiness of the young couples. —We quote from the B A. Stand-ard the following paragraph, which is interesting in view of our recent suggestion that porcine products might and should be added to the exportable productions of Uruguay. -«No rasher statement has ever been made than that this country would never export bacon, ham, or pork. We see that a beginning is now being made, as the Veloce steamer Vittoria, which sailed for Genoa, Thursday, took several cases of bacon to that proud city. Most of the so-called bacon still made here is only fit to give to pigs addicted to cannibalism; but there are two or three firms that turn out the raw ma-terial for breakfast rashers quite as good in flavour as the im-ported article, its only drawback being that, owing to the climate, or some defect in the saving pro-cess, it does not keep in summer. As for hams, they have not come to the front yet, though some very would never export bacon, ham, or to the front yet, though some very fair attempts to make them fit com-pany for a boiled turkey and celery sauce have been made. In this great maize country there is no reason why it should not speedily rival the United States in exporting pork, ham and bacon, as it is doing in wheat.»

fessed for the sick girl-evidently

A few days went over without bringing any material change in Ursula's condition. They were days of terrible anxiety and suspense to the three who loved the sick girl so well; of general corrow and sympathy in the camp. Night after night the tall, bearded miners who had admired the English girl's pretty face, and loved her for her pleasant ways and kind heart, came alter the day's work was over to ask how she fared, and went away saddened by the invariable answer, «No better—gloomily discuss her illness and chances of recovery over their pipes and glasses at the canteen. They brought her the flowers and ferns she loved, new milk end eggs, for which they had tramped miles over the weldt and purchased at exorbitant prices from the Boer farmers; one, the roughest and most blasphemous of the lot, went so far as to waylay the doctor as he returned from his nightly visit, and after show-ing him a diamond at the size and brilliancy of which the doctor's eyes glistened, offered it to him on condition that he would devote the redeeming power of a pure, unselfish love.

Those days and night of ceaseless and intense suspense, while they dimmed the lustre of Judith's eyes, and robbed the colour from her obeeks, refined and etherealised her obecks, refined and stherealised her somewhat coarse beauty, till Denis was sometimes painfully reminded of the beautial face which eight years ago, when he was a boy at Or-ford, had won his love, for whose sake he had quarrelled with father and mother, and become a wanderer in a strange land. in a strange land.

Ten weary days dragged thetr elow length away; the sun rose and set. Night after night the Southern Cross blazed in the cloudless sky. Below the bank, near which the tent was pitched, the solemo river swept on to the sea. The hight wind moan-ed across the weldt, and the trees rustled, and still the fever burned in Ursula's veins, and the shadow of the Death Angel's wings howered over the tent.

But there came a night at last —a night which Denis will re-member to the end of his life with deepest joy and gratitude-when the shadow was lifted; when the incoherent mutterings or wild the incoherent mutterings or wild delirium gave place to a calm, refresh-ing eleep; when upon the dry, parched skin a gentle perspiration broke; when the dootor, summoned in haste, spoke confidently of a change for the better, and the anxious watchers, looking with trembling delight into each other's eyes, for the first time dared to speak of hope, and told each other in thankful whispers that now that the crisis was eately over, youth and a good General Matter was estely over, youth and a good constitution would speedily amort their recuperative powers, and that she would soon be well again.

CHAPTER IV.

But many days passed before this desirable consummation was attain-ed. Many days of pain and weari-ness were to beendure i before Ursula regained her wasted strength, before the train colored attained between es.
