SUNDRIES.

-Judge Montaño has just passed the severe sentence of 26 years imprisonment on Vicente Remedios, who on Feb. 19 of the present year, brutally murdered the boy Sinforiano de Leon, first throttling him and then stabbing him. The Judge states that the murderer acted under the impulse of the most brutal ferocity, and he would have passed a sentence of death but for his previous good character, and the fact that he confessed his crime. Certainly, we are improving in these matters.

-According to the Siglo, in 1635 voters registered and only 250 votes taken. In the 2nd section 901, votes taken. In the 2nd section 901, including the soldiers of the 1st infantry, the staff of the Marine Commandancy, the coastguard, and the men of war; only 240 votes taken. In the 3rd section 503 taken. In the 3rd section 503 votes were taken out of 1502 registrations, this being the most favoured section of all. In the 4th section twenty-one votes were taken, out of 1211 registrations. We, think these figures afford ample justification for

Therefore his ears are in his legs.-Q. E. D.

-La Nacion, the solitary government organ, is of the opinion that the country is greatly to be congratulat-ed on the result of Sunday's elections, and on the fact that, with one small exception, they were carried out in perfect order. But when the Nacion congratulates, the country generally mourns.

—Msgr. Mariano Soler, Bishop elect of Montevideo, will shortly leave for Rome on business connected with his prelacy. It is noteworthy that the appointment of this priest has been received with absolute silence by all the papers except El Bien, the position of the latter compelling it to take notice.

—Official telegrams have confirm

-Official telegrams have confirmed the statement that the election in Rosario last Sunday was accompan-ied by a conflict in which two persons were killed and three or four others wounded. The "opposition" candidate came out at the head of the poll by a large majority, and had to telegraph to the President for protection as his life was threatened. The President has ordered the usual cofficial analysis, but conjust when official enquiry, but against whom does not appear as at present no one seems exactly to blame. -We cannot agree with some of our contemporaries who think it wise but at the same time we think that the other extreme is taken by some of them in publishing, as was done of them in publishing, as was done yesterday, the farewell letters written by a suicide to his relations or friends. This laying bare of private matter serves no useful purposes and only gratifies a morbid curiosity which were better left unsatisfied.

-Men who would solve the problems of the universe should remember that we can only see one half of a sphere at once. The fellow on the other side may be all right from his point of view.

- Rumours are again current about changes in the Cabinet, especially with regard to the Minister of Fi-nance. So far they are not sufficient-ly well founded to be worth repeating. Constant rumours are just as much a sign of crisis as a cough is —Yesterday's papers were very dull and melancholy. They could find nothing to talk about except the elections, and that was not at all a cheerful subject, always excepting for the Nacion. Even the telegrams failed to give one item of interest, although the Galveston line has

It is very well to dismiss Theosophy as a mere stheological diletantism. The Calcutta Psycho-Religious Society has discovered in the Yoghi Shastra some maxims for the conservation of the human body which, if they are well founded, are undoubtedly of considerable importance. One is to the effect that she who can by inserting old cotton make the breath flow through the left nostril by day and through right nostril by night succesively for twelve years shall enjoy health for twelve years shall enjoy health and youth up to a great old age, and shall not be affected by any poison.» The directions are somewhat difficult to understand. The complete theosophic cure for «depression of spirits» and many minor troubles is to «take in pure air by the tongue like a serpent.» Unfortunately the operation sems difficult. The Cardinal, in reply, reciprocated their kindly feelings. He rejoiced that Jews shared in the strength of the British Empire, and added to it. Unhappily the same could not be said of other lands. But both the cause and the remedy were in the hands of those who declaimed against the Jewish race.

The so-called miracle at the Styrian village of Luttenberg, recently re-ported, has already led to disturbances and bloodshed. A few days ago four and bloodshed. A few days ago four thousand people were assembled in the forest, and crowded near the tree in which the Virgin Mary is suppos-ed to appear twice a day to little Aloisio Trahl. As the crowd was very disorderly, policemen, who in, the country carry rifles, ordered the child their interference, A man trod on one of the policemen's fect, and shook his fists at him. A system of «voluntary patients» that is, of allowing persons whose mental condition is not such as to warrant the granting of certificates of insanity to enter lunatic asylums of their own free will—is found to work well in Scotland. Such sufferes are not registered as lunatics nor is there any power to detain them for more than three days after they give notice of a desire to leave. During last year the total number of these persons admitted was seventy-six, which shows a large increase upon the average of the last ten years. The Commissioners in Lunacy for Scotland state that at the visits of the Madical Commissioners all the Madical Commissioners and the Madical Commissioners and the Madical Commissioners all the Madical Commissioners and the Madical Co the Medical Commissioners all such patients are seen, and where there is any reason to believe that they fail in any respect to understand the conditions of their residence, it is the custom to explain these matters o them. In no instance has it ever been found that the nature of the position of a voluntary patient has een intentionally concealed from him. On the whole, the Commissioners declare their opinion that the volun-tary patient system is a useful provision of the law.

The Egyptians and Greeks discovered that there was an average interval of 100 years between the births of children and the births of their greatgrandfathers, that is 33 1/4 years be-tween the birth of a son and the birth tween the birth of a son and the birth of his father, and at present the interval from generation to generation, from the birth of the parents to the birth of the children, may be thirty years, early marriages producing a generation every twenty-six years, and late marriages every thirty-six years. More women are married than men, but the women are married at an earlier age, and it is by reason of remarriages that the absolute number of women who marry is greater than the absolute number of men in the proportion of 1,046 to 1,000. By re-marriages about 100 women marry 108 men, and 100 men 113 women. The mean age of which 113 women. The mean age at which women marry is 24.3 years, and according to the census returns the women living at that age were 4.180 more numerous than the women living at the later mean age 25 12 years, at which men marry, which is acurious illustration of law regulating social combination. — Provincial Medical Journal.

THE CURATE OF CHURNSIDE.

The servants from the vicarage were not the first persons to hit upon the dead body of the vicar. Joe Harley, the poacher, was out reconnoitring that afternoon in the vicar's preserves; and five minutes often Walter Done had ressed down vicar's preserves; and five minutes after Walter Dene had passed down the far side of the hedge, Joe Harley skulked noiselessly from the orchard up to the cover of the gate by Selbury Copse. He crept through the open end by the post (for it was against Joe's principles (for it was against Joe's principles) under any circumstances to climb struck so violently against a soft object, in the ditch underfoot literation of its statutes. The propositions presented were sanctioned by a large majority, and in consequence the capital of the Banco Italoriental is reduced to $1,600,000 gold tilly paid up, and divided into 40,000 hares of $40 each.

—Circulars were distributed esterday announcing that Don Juan into the latter than the statute of any sort, and so needlessly expose himself), and he was just going to slink off along the was just goin Vesterday announcing that Don Juan Cinto had retired from the firm of L. B. Supervielle and Co. of the Banque Francaises of this marked and the agency in B. Aires, and that in future the business would be conducted under the sole signature of L. B. Supervielle. in Dorchester Gaol; but, in spite of his familiarity with minor forms of lawlessness, he was moved enough in all conscience by this awful and unexpected discovery. He turned the body over clumsily with his hands, and saw that it had been stabbed in the back once only. In doing so he trod in a little blood and got a drop or two on his sleeve and trousers; for the pool was bigger now, and Joe was not so handy or dainty with his fingers as the idvllic curate.

It was an awful dilemma, indeed, for a confirmed and convicted poacher. Should he give the alarm then and there, boldly, trusting to his innocence for vindication, and helping the police to discover the murderer? Why, that would be sheer suicide, no doubt; 'for who but would believe,' he thought, 'twas me as done it?' Or should he slick away suicide. he slink away quietly and say nothing, leaving others to find the body as best they might? That was dangerous enough in its way if anybody saw him, but not so dangerous as the other course. In an evil hour for his own chances Joe Harley chose that worse counsel, and slank off in his familiar crouching fashion towards the opposite corner of the copse.

On the way he heard John's voice holloaing for his master, and kept close to the hedge till he had quite turned the corner. But John had caught a glimpse of him too, and John did not forget it when, a few minutes later, he came upon the horrid sight beside the gate of Selbury Copse.

Meanwhile Walter had taken Meanwhile Walter had taken King Charlie to the veterinary's, and had his leg bound and bandaged securely. He had also gone down to the church, got out his surplice, and begun to put it on in the vestry for evensong, when a messenger came at hot haste from the vicerage, with pays that Master the vicarage, with news that Master Walter must come up at once, for the vicar was murdered. 'Murdered!' Walter Dene said

TO-DAY for B.Aires and inter- to himself slowly, half aloud; the ground

'murdered! how horrible! Murder-'mirdered! how horrible! Murdered!' It was an ugly word, and he turned it over with a genuine thri I of horror. That was what they would say of him if ever the thing came to be discovered! What an inappropriate classification!

He threw aside the surplice, and weeked up hyrriadly to the vicerage rushed up hurriedly to the vicarage rushed up hurriedly to the vicarage. Already the servants had brought in the body, and laid it out in the clothes it wore, on the vicar's own bed. Walter Dene went in, shud dering, to look at it. To his utter amazement, the face was battered in horribly and most unrecognisably by a blow or kick! What could that hideous mutilation mean? He could not imagine. It was an awful mystery. Great heavens, just fancy if any one were to take it into his head that he, Walter Dene, had done that, had kicked a defenceless old gentleman brutally about had done that, had kicked a defence-less old gentleman brutally about the face like a common London ruffian! The idea was too horrible to be borne for a moment. It unmanned him utterly, and he hid his face between his two hands and sobbed aloud like one broken-hearted. 'This day's work has been too much for my nerves,' he been too much for my nerves,' he thought to himself between the sobs; 'but perhaps it is just as well I should give way now completely.
