PASSING NOTES.

We are to have no fresh taxes at present, that is, presumably, until a fresh deficiency is discovered in the estimates. The E. P. is of opinion that the balance of the Budget can be maintained with the present taxes and has sent a Message to the Chambers withdrawing certain schemes laid before them last year for ad-ditional taxes, and which had not yet been reported upon in committee. Perhaps the Message was a trifle superfluous, for almost the same taxes were embodied in the Law of January 12 last. However it is satisfactory to read the declaration of the E. P. that the limit of taxation has been reached for the present, and we certainly congratulate the new Minister of Finance upon his name first appear-ing officially in connection with this document. By all means let us have

We have just had the clear declaration of the Executive Power that the Budget should be sufficiently balanced without the imposition of further taxes. We have also had the statement that the new Ministers intend making further considerable economies in the estimates or administrative expenses. The latter is not exactly official and may perhaps be fathered by the wish, or may be due to the zeal proverbially attributed to enew brooms. Anyhow, there is no doubt that the estimates are capable of considerable compression. Another half million or more might be knocked off the Army estimates with the greatest advantage, and the mons-trous pension lists and some retrons pension lists and some re-trenchments in the other departments might account for another half million. Altogether then we think it is quite possible to make a reduc-tion of about one million dollars in the forthcoming. Budget. And as we have it authori-tatively stated that the Budget is balanced without this reduction, the balanced without this reduction, the million thus economised should afford a large margin for the reduc-tion of the present overpowering taxes and duties, and first of all, of the recently re-imposed duties on exports, which, we are assured on all sides, are having a most deadly effect on the productive energies of the country. In fact, we have every reason to think that a restoration of the duties and taxes to the standard of some eight months ago— more than high enough even then — would imply a very small reduction in the results. certainly nothing approaching what might be met by the suggested economies. As we have had many occasions to argue and prove, these additional taxes, when carried beyond a certain point, merely crush commerce and industry without producing the calculated increase in the revenue. All the duties imposed in the last six months, including those

the same months in the two preceeding years, whilst there can be no doubt whatever of their mischievous doubt whatever of their mischievous effect upon business. When the crisis first burst upon us, business fell for a time into a lethargic state. It is now making valiant efforts to regain some of its former activity, but it finds itself checked and checkmated at every turn by the extra burdens imposed just at the time when the previous burdens should have been lightened. Expecially is this true in lightened. Especially is this true in reference to national industries and produce. In fact over-taxation is the preponderant cause which is now preventing a revival of trade. If the new Ministers would only turn their attention to this and make all practicable reductions in the administrative expenses with the ulterior view of reducing the present monstrous rate of taxation, they would do more towards reducing the crisis and reviving the country than any twenty loans.

The Message already referred to saves us from one calamity, namely, the raising of the patente or license on transatiantic steamers to $200 for the round journey. The present license of $90, imposed alike on steamers with packet privileges and those without, is found excessive, as has been proved by the excernts we recently made the excerpts we recently made from the powerful articles of «Mario.» If the port is be-ing killed by the present fees and duties, what would happen to it with such an increase as was thest with such an increase as was threat-ened here? This only shows the utterly reckless way in which the governing powers propose new imposts without ever stopping to consider the effect of the same upon commerce. We have no hesitation in saying that if this new tax had been imposed the increase in the revenue would not have represented one fifth part of the loss entailed on one fith part of the loss entailed on the port generally. Some day, perhaps, the eyes of the governing powers will be opened, and they will then per-ceive that the people are not created for the sole purpose of being taxed to supply administrative waste or dishonesty. There are limits on which even a springer cannot be which even a spunge cannot be

The elections of representatives for the department of Colonia hav-ing been declared void by the recent decision of the Chambers, the Executive has issued a decree assigning Sunday, March 29, for new elections. The persons elected are warned that they must come provided with powers to discuss reforms in the Constitution. The absence of this formality was the cause of the previous elections being annulled.

Message.

The Executive has passed a Message to the Chamber of Repres-entatives to the following effect,— Before presenting the schemes of taxes which the Chambers converted into law by the sanction of Jan. 12, there had been presented to the Chambers other schemes of a similar nature, not yet reported upon ly the corresponding Committee. ## Excellent Ideas.

Deputy Dr. Mendoza has presented to the Chamber of Representatives two bills which have already been very favourably received by press. The first is to the effect that in future no person accepting milita-ry service for the Nation shall expect a pension for himself or his heirs, except in case of death or wounding on the field of battle. The second is to the effect that in future no person may fill the post of Jefe Politico of a Department, even temporarily, without fulfilling the conditions exacted by Art. 119 of the Constitution, that is to say, he must be a citizen of the Republic, must possess landed property in the Department to the value of $4000, and must be 30 years of age. These bills have been referred to the corresponding committees.

-Dr. Castellanos, Minister of Foment, has quite recovered from his recent severe indisposition and is assiduously attending to his

- It is reported on good authority that the new Minister of Finance, Sr. Ramirez, is making great efforts to have the Budget for 1891-2 ready for presentation to the Chambers by April 1, as ordained by law. As our readers will well remember, the presentation of the estimates has gene rally been two orthree months behind hand, and the consequence is that on July 1, when the new Budget is supposed to come into force, the discussion has not even commenced. This was notably the case last year when, as a matter of fact, the Budget Committee never reported, nor was there any pretence made at discussion of the Budget until the introduction of the Economies Bill in January last, when half the financial year had already expired.

-An important contemporary (not the Nacion) states that one of the Ministers has declared that the Bra-zilian loan is a State Secret, and that whilst the papers are at liberty to say what they like concerning it, no official information will be vouchsafed them. It the said loan in anyway requires the guarantee of the Nation, it cannot long be kept a State Secret, as it must be presented to the Chambers for ratification. We always thought that those hole-and-corner dealings denoninated State Secret. dealings denonimated State Secrets were reserved for empires and monarchies, not for republics.

London, February 9.

A Cardiff Correspondent telegraphs that the position of affairs in the Bristol Channel ports is daily becoming more grave, and that steps have been taken by the Federated Unions which, it is anticipated, will result in the configuration of the configuration. result in an extension of the conflict to other mercantile centres. A meeting of the strikers is to be held to-day at which a definite course of action will be resolved upon. Meanwhile, the dock officials are endeavouring to secure outside labour. Should the dock men think it necessary, the railway men will come out to aid them in the struggle. Dr. Perowne, the new Bishop of Worcester, paid his first visit to Birmingham on Saturday, and yesterday preached at Aston. He said that in the present day there was a good deal of perverted reverence, and that religious manuals were killing religion. Many popular religious hymns were simply shocking in the ir irreverent sensationalism.

He believes that the adoption of reciprocity with the United States—the plank upon which the Liberals take their stand—would bring about the annexation of Canada to that country. In conclusion the Premier appeals to the electors to pronounce against reciprocity and thus aid him

When Christopher Columbus was leaving Spain in despair after the Junta had pronounded his exploration scheme to be «vain and impracticable,» he halted at the monastery of La Rabida, near Palos, to ask for bread for his boy Diego. There he poured his sorrows into the sympathetic ears of Juan Perez, who had been the Spanish Queen's confessor. thetic ears of Juan Perez, who find been the Spanish Queen's confessor. The monk's influence at Court was still sufficient to regain the ear of royalty for Columbus; and not far from this spot, where his despair was changed to hope, the marvellous voyage of discovery was commenced in 1492. For this monastery of La Rabida, the Spanish Ministers of the Colonies and Public Works, with Government engineers and architects. Colonies and Public Works, with Government engineers and architects set out on Saturday evening, with the view of settling on the spot plans for the raising of a statue to Columbus, for restoring the famouscenvent, and for preparing accommodation for an American Congress, and other projected celebrations of the four hundredth anniversary of the great voyage of Columbus. Unfortunately, the state of health of the lineal descendant of Columbus the twelfth Duke of Veragua, leaves little hope that he will be able to be present at the fourth centenary celebration.

The distinguished Russian trave-ller in Central Asia, Colonel Pevtsoff, and his companions are expected in St. Petersburg next month. They will bring details of their discovery of a tract of land several hundred metres under the level of the sea. This discovery is attracting considerable attention among the students of physical geography.

February 10.

There was no improvement yesterday in the position of affairs arising out of the strike at Cardiff. Indeed, the strikers claim to have gained deed, the strikers claim to have gained ground, a number of Bute warehousemen who were told off to assist at the tipping having refused to work with blacklegs. Subsequently these men were informed that their presence was no longer required. In the course of the afternoon a telegram was received from Mr. Wilson, the General Secretary of the Seamen's Union, in which he stated that «the campaign» would be opened at Hull campaign» would be opened at Hull that day, orders having been issued that all Federation boats were to be blocked in that port. A demonstration was held in the afternoon and attended by about three thousand men, An incident of the day was the ordering of a detachment of soldiers for dock duty from the Maindee

Barracks. Troops under Colonel Settle left Cairo last night for Suakim, whence the Governor with the whole force available has been ordered to advance upon Tokar. It is the intention of the Government to occupy the town, and to build a fort and institute a civil Government there.

The Judge of the Burslem Country
Court had yesterday a difficult task

Court had yesterday a difficult task—to decide upon the worth of poetry «made to order and duly delivered.» The «poems» were in praise of certain flooded fields as a boating and angling resort in summer and a place for skating in winter, Eventually the value was assessed at ten shillings. Extravagance in funeral wreaths has reached a point which in Liverpool has provoked a rather decided movement against this inconveniently costly fashion. What, it is asked, have we gained by getting rid of mutes, plumes, hatbands, scarves, if we are to be ruined by the growing rivalry of mourners, each determined we are to be ruined by the growing rivalry of mourners, each determined to lay on the coffin of the deceased friend a bigger and a better wreath than his fellowmourners can afford? The very florists' shops are turned from joy and brightness to funereal gloom by the display of funeral wreaths, and it is feared that the late severe weather has taxed many a person in this fashion in a way that he has been ill able to bear. One correspondent states that at a funeral at which he was recently present the drawingwas recently present the drawing-room of the house was so full of flowers that no more than about four persons could step into the room at one time to see them. Chairs, tables, sofas, piano, pictures, walls, and even the floor, except where four people might, if careful, stand, were covered with wreaths, many of them a yard in diameter, and a few much larger. Relief is looked for in the growth of the practice of adding to an announcement of a death the sensible intimation. No fluctuations was a fine or the sensible of the se intimation «No flwers.»

The diminution in the number of our criminals has been the subject of much congratulation of late. It may be that the actual decrease of crime is not sufficient to account for this, and that in part at least it is due to the shorter sentences now so generally imposed. But that crime is to some extent actually diminishing while the population is increasing, seems to admit of no doubt; and it is especially satisfactory to find that the criminal with a knowledge of a the criminal with a knowledge of a trade is fast becoming quite a rare bird. It is indeed a great and a growing difficulty in the building and repairing of our prisons that whereas up till the past few years skilled labour was always to be found among the prisoners themselves, the supply is dwindling every year, and the employment of free outside labour more and more necessary.

is undergoing a development that threathens at the same time to be its destruction. Its inventor has altered destruction. Its inventor has alfered its forms that it may be a literary as well as commercial language, but the Volapük Academy does not accept the alterations. There is therefore a split among «Volapükist», and each sideignores the writings and proceedings of the other. In the meantime the causes suffers. There were once twenty journals in Europe and America in the Volapük interest, but the majority of these have ceased to apmajority of these have ceased to ap-

In describing some of the results of the Educational Congress held in Paris during the great Exhibition, M. de Coubertin tells us that six thousand letters were despatched from Paris early last year, addressed to head masters of English colleges all over the world. A great many answers heve in consequence been received to the following onestions: received to the following questions:received to the following questions:—
« What are the games played in your school or university? If there are local plays give the chief rules. How many hours do the boys play a day? a week? What about riding horseback, fencing, military drill, rowing? Are they allowed to form athletic associations? Have they debating societies? Doyoubelieve in athletics in improving companionship? morality? work? temper? After summarising work? temper?» After summarising these answers M. de Conbertin adds the inseresting comment that the enquiry has shown that all over the world Englishmen, who perhaps knew very little about Arnold him-self, are still holding to his views and ideas, and believe them to be the best. «A reform of the same kind (he adds) we are now trying to intruduce in France, according to the perhaps un-Christian, but very practical principle: when you find your neighbour has something good, take it.»

-Italy holds the evil pre-eminence in mortality from malaria fevers and small-pox, Austria and France coming a ret but laby some boast of the ing next; but Italy can boast of the lowest average of deaths from gen-er I tuberculosis and from drink. Of accidental deaths Italy has fewer than England and Switzerland, and has far fower from suicide than Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Bel-gium, and England. On the other hand it is Italy's misfortune that she has the largest number of homicides. From 1876 to 1883 there was no capital punishment in Italy; in 1884 three soldiers were executed, and in 1885 two. The highest number of accidental deaths occurred in 1883, when the earthquake in Casamicciola happened, killing in all the island of Ischia 1890 persons. Excluding suicides the accidental deaths in Italy in 1888 were 12,946. In the same year 112 men and 66 women are recently to have dial in Italy in 1888. are reported to have died in Italy of

If there were three peaches on the table, and your little sister should eat one, how many would be left? Johnny.-We ain't had a peach in the house this year, let alone three. Teacher.—We are only supposing the peaches to be on the table, Johnny. Johnny.—Then they wouldn't be

Teacher.-No. Johnny .- Would they be preserved peaches?

Theacher.—Certainly not.
Johnny.—Pickled peaches?
Teacher.—No, no. There wouldn't be any peaches at all, as I told you,

Johnny; we only suppose the three peaches to be there. Johnny.-Then there wouldn't be any peaches, of course.

Teacher.—Now, Johnny, put that knife in your pocket, or I will take it away, and pay attention to what I am saying. We imagine three peaches to be on the table. Teacher.-And your little sister eats one of them, and then goes away. Johnny.—Yes, but she wouldn't go away until she had finished the three. You don't know my little sister.

Teacher.—But suppose your mo-ther was there, and wouldn't let her eat but one ?

Johnny.-Mother'a out of town, and won't be back till next week.

Teacher (sternly).—Now, Johnny,
I will put the question once more, and if you do not answer it correctly, I shall keep you after school. If three peaches were on the table, and your little sister were to eat one of them, how many would be left? Johnny (straightoning up). - There wouldn't be any peaches left. I'd port, and elect four directors. grab the other two.

Teacher (touching the bell) .- The scholars are now dismissed. Johnny White will remain where he is.

The Hand of Fate

(A STORY,)

«My other name is Harcourt,» she answered. «Myfather takes the shooting round here, and my mother and I always come down to the Priory for the end of the summer. You must come and see us, Mr. Leith.»

«May I? he said eagerly. «How kind you are. And will you promise me a favour? I want you to call me have my christian name. Lockbart by my Christian name—Leckhart, you know—all my friends do that.» *Lockhart,* she said reflectively;

«it is a pretty name.»

It seemed to him that he had never heard it before that moment.

They walked on together, these two children, towards the sea, each supremely happy in the other's company. He showed her the flowers he had strewn in her path; she looked her delight at his homage. «They are willing to die for you— as I should be,» he added softly.

She was not startled, his tone was so natural and reassuring, she looked up frankly into the eyes which gazed down upon her.

«Do you love me then?» she said.

«Love you!» cried, with a sudden access of passion. «Words will not say it. I have worshipped you since I. saw you first. Oh, Sybil—but no, I dare not ask you—I must be patient—I must work for you, and win you; but I may tell you that I love you, my queen. You forgive me? You are not angry with me?» not angry with me?»

She turned to him simply, with her eyes shining.
«Angry, Lockhar? No» and before she could say more she was clasped in her lover's arms and covered with his kisses. She submitted to his caresses, bowing her lovely head against his breast. They stood there in an ecstasy, dream-They stood there in an ecstasy, dreamily gazing seaward where sky and ocean met in an infinite embrace. The cliffs looked down upon them dumb with the mystery of dead ages; the sea sang in their ears its pean of the future, for they had cone into perfect harmony with Nature and the one of Godbacter. anconscions fulfilment of God's eternal law. The sun was setting behind them, and as they lingered on the shore the dark shadows of the cliffs crept over them-a sinister omen et impending doom. Sybil gave a little

«It is getting late,» she said;« we must go:»

«And to-morrow, my queen?» «Ah! to-morrow we have people coming in the afternoon, and in the morning I must be with mother.»

«Can you not give your lover one short hour in the morning, my

"If your lordship wishes it," she said, making him an arch little «You are irresistible,» he cried.

«When I see you like this I do not know whether to plunge into the sea or dash myself against the cliffs » «Is there no middle course,» she asked naïvely.

And his answer was a kiss. As they turned their steps homeward Lockhart thought he saw Richard Hasluck disappear behind one of the huge boulders that lay scattered here and there about the beach. A strange look came into his eyey, and his hand wandered involuntarily behind his waist until it touched the cold barrel of a small revolver.

Next day Richard Hasluck kept Used largely upon the watch upon the Priory, and waited there until he saw Sibyl Harcourt most valuable Flocks in the come forth to meet her lover. He had had a long conference with Mrs. Leith, and they had decided that Lockhart should be got away from Wins-tone as soon as possible. Meanwhile having little to hope from a further appeal to Lockhart himself, Hasluck had determined as a last resource to lay all the circumstances before Miss Harcourt, and implore her assistance in saving his friend. He saluted her withgrave courtesy.

«Miss Harcourt, I believe?»
«Yes,» she said sweetly. And you are Lockhart's friend. I knew you

«I have come to tell you some-thing which I fear will cause you pain

Miss Harcourt. He is not ill!» she cried. «Oh, tell

«He is not ill at present. But he is threatened with a grave malady.»
A little cry of agony escaped her.
Her mind was full of dark forebodings, and as Hasluck looked down into the pleading eyes that sought his own, he could hardly go on with the words that he felt it his duty to

«A grave malady,» he continued; «but you can save him. He is the victim of an hereditary taint. It begins in love, and developes into madness, and culminates in death. That was the history of his father's life; it is our duty-yours and mine-to save him from the same fate. It begins in love," he repeated gently. She looked up at him with a dazed

«Is it true?» she asked wildly, «or are you speaking with some hidden meaning? Oh, it cannot—it cannot

«Before Heaven it is true» he answered.

The sad earnestness of his manner leit her no hope, and as the terrible reality dawned upon her, brave though
