PASSING NOTES.

On the expectative. We were there twelve months ago. We are still there to-day. It may seem incredible that such a situation should be prolonged for such a time, but as an absolute fact it is true. Practically the situation seems to us just the same to-day as it was this day last year, or as it has been any time during the painful interval. No truthful person dare stand up to-day and say that the problem is definitely settled. We are on the eve of seeing everything settled, important negotiations are «on toot,» or «pending» or in a highly «satisfactory» state. So we are told by the Government mouthpieces, and those who dare to doubt are stigmatised as unpatriotic, enemies to the credit of the country, and dangerous pessi-mists. Yet if we look back, we will find nothing but a succession of similar announcements not one of similar announcements not one of which has ever yet been converted into tangible reality except that small and short-lived affair of the Brazilian loan. Like Tantalus, the cup is always at our lips, but we are never allowed to drink. We might well go further and apply the same remarks to the financial legislation since the crisis. Look at the time and trouble spent over the pompous Law for the Reorganisation of the National Bank, of December 1890. Yet it all proved useless. Look at the Law for the Unification of the Foreign Debt. It is who argue from reason, not faith? The strange part of the affair, to us is that this attitude of expectation should be so chronic and should survive so many shocks. It gives a new reading to Pope's well known couplet.-

eHope springs eternal in the human breast Man never is, but always to be blest.»

Revolution in Buenos Aires! Such was the alarming cry of the newsboys yester afternoon. But these boys yester afternoon. But these boys are alarmists by profession and find a little exaggeration good for business. It was soon found that the news they were crying referred not to any actual outbreak, but merely to an active recrudescence of those fears of revolutionary movement which have been move or less present for many weeks, if not months. Argentine politics, like their finances, have become so muditled and mixed of late that we candidly contess we have been unable to follow them, and that we find ourselves quite unable to grasp any defollow them, and that we find ourselves quite unable to grasp any definite idea of the situation except that it is highly uncomfortable and underirable. The revolution of July, 1890, against Juarez Celman and his gang, we could understand and sympathise with. But to-day we are in the dark. We cannot see who is going to revolt or what they are going to revolt against. It would be intelligible if there was a general revolution against the entire governing party and system which have brought the country so low, with the intention of sweeping them out of the way and making a fresh start. But there are no indications start. But there are no indications that such is the case; in fact such could hardly be the case for it would could hardly be the case for it would be little more than a revolt of the Argentine people against themselves. We are afraid then that the impending revolution,—if there is indeed one impending,—will be nothing more than a struggle of one party or faction against another for the reins of power, not for the salvation of the country. We confess we see little or no other object in all recent Argentine political move-

NEWS OF THE DAY

Parliament.

In the Chamber of Represent-atives, on Thursday, the modified Port Dues Bill, from the other Chamber, was referred to the Committee of Finance. The discussion in detail of the Bill respecting the establishment of a new Bank of Emission was on the order of the day, but for want of a quorum no sitting could be held.

The Conversion Scheme. The following letter appeared in the Financial News of Dec. 3. We give it without comment.—

Sir,—I think it was in the year
1888 that the Uruguay Government made a contract for the construction of the Western Railway for account of the Government. The contractors agreed to take payment for the workagreed to take payment for the work in six per cent. bonds (about £3,000,000 of them), valued at 85 per cent. Messrs. Baring Brothers and Co. took the first series, amounting to £1,200,000, at 85, having the right to take the remainder at same price, taking their own time to issue price, taking their own time to issue the first series to the public, but being obliged to supply the necessary funds as soon as the Government received each section of the line. The contractors required a large amount of capital to begin the work, and this was found by a syndicate in London, who were to be recouped when the Government should draw on Messrs. Baring, for work done. So far, so good; everything looked promising, and the contract was calculated to leave, when finished, a profit of nearly £1,000,000. Unfortunately, troubles supervened; certificates were given supervened; certificates were given and not paid, the Baring failure came, accompanied by the River Plate crisis, and all was dark as a London fog. The works were being a distinguished financier if you cannot finance something difficult? And the financier thoughthappy thought!—why shouldn't the Uruguay bondholder build this railway? Why not? A bondholder is the best fellow, and the most harmless in existence. A proposal was made to the Government about was made to the Government about the railway and the foreign debt, which, I believe, was reject d, and Mr. Noetzlin returned to London.

The River Plate crisis got worse and worse, and Uruguay, in spite of the most heroic efforts, although it left its army and its employees unpaid at home, found that it required some breathing time to be able to attend to its foreign creditors. Dr. Ellauri was sent to London with instructions to ask for a temporary suspension of was sent to bondon with instructions to ask for a temporary suspension of interest; but he was tremendously astonished when the (ity financier said to him: «My dear sir, you are too modest. We will obtain for you a permanent reduction of interest and sinking fund. We will out a down the guaranteed railways from and sinking fund. We will cut down the guaranteed railways from 7 per cent. to 3 ½ per cent., and then we will build the Western Railway. Telegrams were sent to Moutevideo stating that the bond-holders made this offer to the Gavernment, and, of course, the offer was accepted. Bueno! Act. I closes. The next move was to get good City names around the conversion scheme—names so good and so powthen we will build the Western Railway. Telegrams were sent to Moutevideo stating that the bondholders made this offer to the Government, and, of course, the offer was accepted. Bueno! Act. I closes. The next move was to get good City names around the conversion scheme—names so good and so powerful that rebellious, ignorant bondholders would have no chance of opposing them successfully. Well, to obtain this we must frighten the Baring liquidators. Now, gentlemen, we are going to build the Western Railway, and will trouble you of £539,000? (2) How much of this sum has been spent in press propagands, and on what papers? (3) A country, and will give the Americans a much more accurate idea of it than they are likely to get by other means short of personal experience.

In summing up, Mr. Hill (writing last March) thinks that though the outlook for the next two or three but we want to know what the proposal is, and if it is based on the emission of £3,000,000 new bonds, yes or no. It not, then cancel that part of the business at once. (4) Is it true that the Government of Uruguay wished to call another Bondholders would have no chance of opposing them successfully. of Description of £3,000,000? (2) How much of this sum has been spent in press propagands and on what papers? (3) A country, and will give the Americans a much more accurate idea of it than they are likely to get by other means short of personal experience.

In summing up, Mr. Hill (writing last March) thinks that though the outlook for the next two or three but we want to know what the proposal stark enough, the future of the country is safe, all spite of all obstacles, she will progress, though slowly. Judged from day to-day, these southern lands seem often to retrograde in their march onward; but every decade shows great changes, all on the side of improvement, Progress here, as in our two of these deliveries i ers who don't understand our sustoms or language, and are sure to be troublesome. We know our own bondholder. No British bondholder will raise his voice against the Council of Foreign Bondholders. But here difficulty cropped up: the chairman, who had arranged the the whole business with Noetzlin, did not desire to preside at the mock meeting. But this was only a small difficulty; another chairman was found who was more complacent. The meeting was called, giving three days notice, and carefully packed; but some Belgian gentlemen from Antwerp turned up and nearly upset the whole arrangement. The chairman was equal to the occasion, and ruled, with great gravity and decorum, that a Britishclerk without a £100 bond is equal to a Belgian with a million. In most civilised countries, when a measure has been sanctioned by a packed meeting, it is declared null and void. Now, I am prepared to prove that many of those present at the meeting on Aurons 31 prepared to prove that many of those present at the meeting on August 31 were not bondholders.

If the Council of Foreign Bondholders do not contradict me, then holders do not contradict me, then they should call a legal meeting, and we will forgive them for the packed one, which, after all, may have been a mistake: the British clerk is sometimes over-zealous in helping his master. Only for the Belgians coming it wouldn't have been necessary. Close of Act III.

The contract is sent out to Montevideo, and the Uruguayan is told he must sanction it in thirty days—he really must, otherwise it will have to go to the bondholders again. The Uruguayan, who has obtained more than he a-ked for, grows suspicious useless. Look at the Law for the Unification of the Foreign Debt. It is still most doubtful that anything will come of it. Look at the present Banking Bills. Not a few think to-day that they will share the same fate and the promised new Banks will turn out illusory. It is very pessimistic to say so, we know, but what alternative is there for those who argue from reason, not faith?

Itandards and the works were suspended and railway material to the value of some £500,000 was piled up on Uruguayan scil. Now to get rid of the railway contract, and to solve this apparently unsolvable problem.

Itandards argue from reason, not faith?

Itandards argue from the Law for the Uruguayan, who has obtained more than he asked for, grows suspicions over so much generosity, and begins to ask awkward questions. The first blunder. In his message to Congress he says, speaking of the Congress he says are supplied to the congress he says and the problem to the value of some £500,000 to London, how to get rid of the railway to say t contract, and to solve this apparently unsolvable problem.

Mr. Noetzlin, a clever financier, was sent to Montevideo. The ordinary mortal would think that in this emergency the only way out of the difficulty would be to go to the Government and say, «We cannot build the railway because the bonds are unsaleable. We are willing to lose something; make it as light as you can, and let us off. We have been always friends of the country, & &c.

Not a bit of it. What is the use of being a distinguished financier if was costumbre inglesa. The good Uru-guayans took a month and a half over the Bill, altering it in every-thing except the 3 ½ per cent. in-terest, and then sent it back. A friend of the President telegraphed from Lendon asking if there would from London, asking if there would be another bondbolders' meeting, and the President replied: «There must be another meeting, as there are great alterations (grandes alteraciones) in the contract. The Council of Foreign Bondholders declare that they accept it, and that, with the help of Dr. Ellauri, they will intro-duce into the text of the new bonds statements at variance with the law. Surely, when they made this statement they had not consulted their solicitor! Closs of Act IV.

Without even an apology to the unfortunate bondholders, the notice goes forth that the old bonds are to be sent to certain bankers, in exchange for certificates or something, and the Council says: «Gentlemen, it's all over.» But it isn't all over—in fact, it is only commencing; and bond-holders will insist on having a legal meeting and on getting information on the following points:—(1) Who has the handling of the commission of £530,000? (2) How much of this

To sum up, the bondholders are asked to relinquish their guarantees and part of their interest for ever; the Guaranteed Railways have to relinquish the hypothecation to them of the land-tax and half their in-Urugaay. Why should not this Western Railway be treated like the other railways? Why should not the gentlemen who put their money into it lose something when all Uruguayan creditors have to relinquish their rights, specially hypothecated, and consent, in addition, to Uruguayan indebtedness being increased by several millions sterling? Upon these points I processed ing? Upon these points I propose to address you further and more in detail, with some remarkable facts and figures and original documents, in a day or two.—Yours truly,

The Nacion yesterday indulges in violent abuse of the Public Prosecutor for having obtained the liberation of the journalist Sr. Goya, illegally imprisoned by an order of the Minister of Government. Absurdly enough, the Nacion so overshoots the mark that it falls into the very offence of which it accesses the very offence of which it accuses Sr. Goya, namely disrespect to the public authorities. The quotations from Sr. Goya's article prove nothing worse than an excess of zeal—with which not a few will sympathise—in attacking abuses that are a discredit to the country.

On Thursday night the troops were called to barracks, the streets patrolled and other military movements made which caused great uneasiness to the residents. There is also great alarm in La Plata. It would seem as if a provincial and national revolution were both on the cards at once.

BOURSE AND HILL

CERTIFIED SPECIALISTS

351-SARANDI-351

The new system and great secret of acing crown and bridges of gold and placing crown and bridges of gold and porcelain, and beautiful artificial teeth without plates, practised in full perfection and security. for the first time in this capital, by the specialist surgeon-dentist W. E. Hill, sarandi 331, is a true and notable advance in dental science. Witness the following certificate of the eminent North American specialist, Dr. Horsey,—CERTIFICATE. Dr. Horsey, Surgeon-Dentist of New-York, Specialist in crown and bridge work.

I certify and declare that Dr. W. E. Hill, surgeon-dentist, is entirely competent to practice with all safety dental crown and bridge work. I also certify that Dr. Hill has performed in my presence a number of these works of the most difficult description, completely and perfectly, proving to me that he is the only person in Montevideo who possesses the true socret of this novel, useful and notable process, the only one who has the apparatus, the experience, knowledge and skill indispensable to be able to employ with success the most modern positive and beautiful process an yet known in dental science.

COD LIVER OIL

WITH-

HYPOPHOSPHATES OF LIME AND SODA First-Its taste is pleasant to the palate, and the mode of manufacture First—1ts taste is pleasant to the palate, and the mode of manufacture digests it in part so as to avoid weakening the digestive organs. Thus the most delicate stomach of a child or an adult can digest it and asimmilate it to the system when they repel absolutely the simple cod liver oil on account of its repulsive taste, and because its abundance of fat will not allow it to be digested and absorbed by the system of strong and robust men. Second.—The hypophosphates combined with cod liver oil in emulsion increase very much its peculiar qualities, forming together a medicine of admirable power, in order to fight with every illness which shows manifestations of phthysis, Scrotula or Emaciation of every description, It is also the best medicine for colds and affections of the throat.

Third.—Its fortifying qualities are marvellous and three times stronge than those of cod liver oil.

For sale in every drug store and chemist's shop.

The whistle of the approaching train warned me that it was time to go. I could only speak a few hurried words of warning to my com-panion-words to which, as I saw

Some years went by, perhaps four or five, and I had not seen Heavy Elijah again. Soon after my con-versation with him he had wandered to Bristol; and one day when I visited that city I found the walls placarded with enormous bills, giving notice of a menagerie which was then stationed in the town. In the evening there was to be a performance in which various wild animals were to play a part, the chief attraction being the *daring and unequalled feats of Signor Bottecini, the world-renowned Italian

As I had nothing better to do in the evening, I went to see the show. It turned out to be a more ambitious affair than I had expected to see. In the centre of a great tent was a kind of pit, several yards in diameter, and perhaps two feet deep, guarded by high iron railings. All round this the seats, crowded with spectators, rose tier upon tier. It was, in fact, a reproduction on a small scale of the old Roman amphitheatre.

The performance began with a sham fight (as it might have been called) between two leopards, and one spectacle of that kind succeeded another until the time came for the grand event of the evening. Two grand event of the evening. Two-lions were to be turned loose in the arena, and Signor Bottecini was to enter unarmed, lay his band on heads, and take other liberties with them.

The lions were introduced, one after another, from doors in the railing which communicated with their cages. Delighted at their comparative freedom, the two lions roared, and ran like enormous cats round the enclosure. In a few minutes the lion-tamer—a tall man, with a forbidding expressed of tage, wearing a huge black beard—walked into the put with nothing but a whip hard the pit, with nothing but a whip in his band.

Hardly had he shown himself when the crowd gave a loud inarticulate cry of surprise and horror. A man from the audience had vaulted highly over the railings, and was running straight at the lion-tamer. I knew him. It was Heavy Elijah!

The other man saw him, gave an involuctary scream of dismay, turned, and fled. But he was too late. In another instant Elijah had him by the throat.

The crowd roared, but nobody remained where he was. From that day forward he never uttered an articulate sound. It was said that he was mad, and I could readily believe it. His attack on Bottecini was itself considered to be a proof

Elijah's life, suspected that the two men had ever met before.

At any rate, the jury found Elijah «Not guilty» on the ground of insanity. I went to see him once at Broadmoor. He did not know me.
He was undoubtedly mad then.
Whether he was mad or not at the time when he took his terrible revenge is more than I can say venge is more than I can say.
