The funeral service over the re- prove a punishment to the prisoners mains of the late Lord Lytton took place in Paris on Saturday afternoon. The procession to the railway terminus was accompanied by a military escort in which all arms were represented. The remains of the late Ambassador reached London yesterday morning, and were taken by road to Knebworth.

An alarming accident happened at Portsmouth during a dense fog yesterday morning. H.M.S. Crocodile, on arriving with troops from Bombay, ran into and carried away part of the railway bridge connecting the line from the Harbour station with the dockyard, The vessel was not damaged, nor did any personal injury result from the collision. A court of inquiry will at once assemble. The match between Lord Sheffield's team and the Victoria eleven at Melbourne was concluded on Saturday, the Englishmen winning by an innings and 107 runs. Mr. V G. Grace carried out his bat for 159. A unique display of chess was given in the City of London Chess Club on Saturday, three of the members-Mr. Loman, Mr. Moriau, and Mr. Curnock-undertaking to play eighteen simultaneous games blindfold, each fighting at six boards. Only sixteen games could be played, however, owing to the absence of two of the single competitors. The blindtold players had all the advantage, winning ten of the sixteen games and drawing three. Various football games of more than passing interest were decided on Saturday. Yorkshire beat Lancashire in the county championship by the narrow margin of a penalty goal to nothing. The Lancastrians won the championship last season with an unbeaten record. In London, the great match was Blackheath v. Richmond, won easily by the former. Under Association Rules the League games attracted large companies. Bolton Wanderers, the leaders, were beaten by Preston North End, who go into second place. At the Oyal the Universities easily beat London.

Mr. A. J. Balfour, in a speech at Huddersfield last night, claimed that the condition of Ireland had been improved, not by the action of Liberals, but by the policy of the ment. Government. He then went on to refer to the agricultural labourers vote in England. Liberals had only lately discovered it, and were seeking to capture it by the promise of village councils. He was sceptical as to the benefits to be conferred by those councils. Discussing the question of small holdings, his view was that those who cultivated the soil would be «rooted to the soil,» if a system of co-operation could be established. That might be kept before them as an ideal. In the meantime he hoped that Mr. Chaplin would at an early date introduce a Small Holdings Bill. The body of the late Mr. Richard Power, M. P., Parnellite Whip, was conveyed from London last night to Ireland, for interment in the family burying-place at Tramore. Mr. Power, who had represented Waterford since 1874, had not been married ten days at the time of his death, which resulted from a chill contracted when visiting a London theatre. A memorial stone of the new Oxford House, in Bethnal-green, established to give Oxford men an opportunity of taking part in the social and religious work of the Church in East London, was laid yesterday afternoon by Sir William Anson, Warden of All Souls, and chairman of the Council. The annual meeting of the Royal Society was held yesterday at the Society's rooms, Burlington House. The anniversary address was delivered by the president, Sir William Thomson. At Eton College yesterday the usual St. Andrew's Day matches were pluyed. The Oppidans won the wall game against the Collegers

He was a big fellow, with a coarse sullen, smooth-shaven face, dresssed in shabby, ill-fitting garments, and was sitting on the box seat ready to start. The man touched his hat, and growled something by way of reply. I did not fancy having Elijah for a coachman, and I turned back into the inn with the intention of demanding another charioteer. I reflected, bowever, that a change would mean loss of time, and that the landlady would not have sent this man if she could have spared a more presentable person; so I jumped into the vehicle and told my Jehu to drive on.
