The Conversion Scheme.
Dr. Ramirez, Minister of Finance, has addressed a letter to Dr. J. M. Muñoz, President of the National Bank, giving him account of the Conversion of the Foreign Debt. The figures are the same as those quoted by us yesterday.

Dr. Ramirez concludes as follows:—
"Government has resolved to facilitate the termination of the operation, both here and in London, respecting those who remain in arrears, perhaps from involuntary causes, and consequently the Public Debt Section will continue to receive the adhesions of holders of the United Debt in the form prescribed and until further orders."

This extends indefinitely the period for conversion here, and we presume the same will be done in London.

Military.
The Commandancy General of the Frontiers South of the Rio Negro having been suppressed, and it being necessary to provide for the command of the land frontiers in charge of that Commandancy, a decree has been issued from the Ministry of War naming General Casimiro Garcia as Commandant General of the Frontier, and placing under his jurisdiction all the land frontier of the Republic.

A decree from the Ministry of War ordains that the members of the Supreme Military Tribunal and that of Appeals shall take oath publicly before the President of the Republic, the Permanent Council of War and the Military Prosecutor General shall take oath before the Supreme Tribunal, and the Judge of Instruction shall take oath before the Tribunal of Appeals.

The Trial of Smithers.
London, 20th January.
Yesterday at the Central Criminal Court, before Mr. Justice Cave, Mr. A. E. Smithers surrendered to take his trial upon an indictment charging him with having misapplied the moneys of the English Bank of the River Plate, of which he was managing director, also with the falsification of the accounts of the bank.

The Solicitor General Mr. Sutton, Mr. Horace Avory and Mr. C. Mathews appeared for the prosecution; Sir Charles Russell, Q.C., and Mr. A. Russell for the defence.
The Solicitor General, in briefly stating the facts of the case, said that the defendant, for some years past had been the managing director of the English Bank of the River Plate Company, which had branches at Montevideo, Buenos Aires, and other places, its London branch being in St. Swithin's-lane, City. The allegations against him were made in respect of two sums of money, which amounted to £7,184, which it was alleged by the prosecution, the defendant had improperly applied to his own purposes between October, 1890, and August 1891. The bank was founded in 1881 with a capital of a million and a-half of money, of which £750,000 was paid up. The directors were all men of high reputation. About the middle of June last year, on an order from the Official Receiver, the company was wound up. Mr. Smithers was in receipt of a salary of £2,200 per annum. An investigation of the accounts led to inquiries, and it was alleged that since the year 1884 the defendant had put to his own private use the current cash, which was kept in the till at the bank. The business of the bank was at one time in the most flourishing condition. Cheques were drawn on Messrs. Glyn, Mills & Co. for cash which was used in the office. In 1890, when the crisis occurred with Messrs. Baring Brothers, there was at once a great depreciation in the value of Argentine stocks. According to his (counsel's) instructions the defendant carried off the £7,697, in which amount he was indebted to the bank, over to the suspension account, and afterwards a balance of £8,000 odd was carried to an account called the «branches floating entries account.» From time to time various loans were made, and in December, 1890, a loan of £12,700 was advanced by the directors to the defendant. In addition, it was alleged that he had obtained a further sum of £3,697 unknown to the directors.

Sir Charles Russell said that, except to one particular branch of the case, the facts were undisputed. Evidence was then adduced in support of the case for the prosecution, which had not concluded when the Court rose.

SUNDRIES.
—The honorable Senators have made a brilliant start of the ordinary sessions as did the Deputies. They answered the convocation of Wednesday with «no quorum» the strange part being that the only eight who attended were the group who voted for the Presidency of Sr. Torres, the rest staying away as if by preconcerted arrangement. As it is said there were some important motions to be brought forward relative to the Banking Bills, this has given rise to considerable comment.

—Amongst the motions referred to are said to be one asking the Executive to furnish all the antecedents relative to the failure of the National Bank, with a detailed balance sheet, the particulars of the famous «special account» and other important information, and another motion excluding Senators Muñoz, Duncan Stewart and Lucas Herrera y Obes, all three on the Directorate of the National Bank, from taking part in the voting on the Bill.

—We hear that the Finance Committee of the Senate is already hard at work on the Banking Bills. It is said that Senator Lucas Herrera y Obes, being a director of the National Bank, will resign his post on the Committee, in which case he will be replaced by Don Alcides Montero, ex-minister of Finance! Our independent contemporaries are already complaining about the composition of this Committee, perhaps the most important of all. They say that the Senators composing it have little knowledge or experience of finance, and are not favoured with any great share of public confidence.

—Good or bad, every one is anxious to see the Banking Bills despatched now with the least delay possible. We shall then at least have some definite conception of the situation and will be relieved from the present terrifying uncertainty, intolerable suspense, and incredible stagnation which is killing every body and everything. Movement in any direction is preferable to the present deadly dry-rot.

—As was anticipated when Brazil changed her condition from an Empire to a Republic, the people are becoming restless and turbulent, and she is falling into the South American trick of unsettled government. The only difference so far seems to be that her revolutions and political upsets have been almost if not quite free from that fighting and assassination which has nearly always characterised similar movements in Spanish-America. The Brazilians do not seem to be imbued with that hankering after blood exhibited so frequently by their neighbours. The latest news is that the Governor of the State of Ceará has been deposed by the people, in consequence of a skirmish with the troops. It is not added that there was any slaughter, so we presume the act was carried out peacefully. These troubles, common of late, seem to indicate the breaking up of the federation into a number of minor independent Republics. Rio Grande will probably be the first to set the example.

—Attention is called to the lengthy communication we publish today from Don Clemente Barrial Posadas, respecting the alleged waste of gold at San Gregorio Mine. As the question is a sufficiently important one, we have sacrificed other material to make room for his letter.

—General Casimiro Garcia, who has just been created Commandant General of the entire frontier of the Republic, being thereby invested with enormous power, is one of the military officers who signed the so-called decree which deposed the constitutional administration of Dr. Ellauri and established a brutal and unconstitutional military despotism in its place. Comment is superfluous.

—A contemporary feebly describes the policy of Dr. Herrera as «one step forward and two backwards.» There is a great deal of truth in the remark for Dr. Herrera never does a good or proper thing without immediately counteracting the good impression produced by some improper appointment or gross outrage of public feeling. The appointment of General Garcia comes under the latter head, and is more than two steps backward.

—The local board of Tres Cruces has asked permission from the Municipality to change the name of Calle Antiguo Maldonado to that of Calle Coronel Brandzen. We cannot see the necessity for the change, if it is required to commemorate the gallant Colonel by naming a street after him, there are plenty of new streets that will serve the purpose without changing an old and well established name, a procedure that gives rise to great inconvenience to the residents. Moreover we object to these double, triple and compound names. Calle Brandzen would serve the purpose well enough, without the introduction of the title.

—The R. M. S. «Magdalena» not having come up from La Plata in time yesterday, for reasons of which we are unaware, her sailing is postponed until noon to-day. This will give extra time for the posting of correspondence.

—There will be a grand fashionable night at the Politeama this evening, when the Water Pantomime, which has proved a big success, will be repeated with the introduction of a Venetian fête and other novelties. It has been arranged to conclude the performance at a more reasonable hour.

—The new Argentine torpedo boat «Comodoro Eyz» just arrived from England paid the port a sufficiently original visit yesterday morning, hoisting the flag for a full speed, hoisting the flag for a visit, and then running out again before any one could catch her, showing a clean pair of heels at the rate of some 32 knots an hour. We expect this was a bit of «show-off» on the part of the English crew who have brought her out.

—According to the Razon all the stokers and coal-men of the river steamers of the Platense Company have struck in Buenos Aires for higher wages or for payment in gold instead of paper. It adds that the sailors and stewards intend to strike also. Stokers for the Eolo were obtained on Wednesday at fabulous prices, to enable her to fulfil her usual trip. If the strike spreads, it will greatly upset the river and postal services.

—Lieut. Col. Bernardino Dominguez has been «suspended» in his functions as commissary of the section Barrio Reus, on account of grave charges made by the residents, into which a formal enquiry has been ordered by the new Chief of Police.

—To-day is a day of «national mourning» being the anniversary of the death of the patriot General Flores, which occurred in 1868. It is not kept as a holiday, however.

—About 11 p.m. on Wednesday night a fire broke out in the back part of the piano and musical instrument store of Sr. Asti, 25 de Mayo 344. Alarm was quickly given and the Fire Brigade was on the spot in less than five minutes and prevented the fire assuming serious proportions. Damages are estimated at about $1500. The business was insured in the Royal Company (E. Cooper agent) for $12,000. The causes of the fire are not known.

BUENOS AIRES.
Under the auspices of the Radical Committee of the «Juventud Provenista» a public meeting was held in the Oñubria theatre on Monday night for the benefit of the Radicals who were wounded in the late elections. The theatre was well filled, a large number of ladies occupying the «palcos» and «cazuela.» Speeches were delivered by Drs. Escobar, Barroeta and Alem and Sr. Adolfo Mujica. Dr. Alem, who was received with great enthusiasm, declared that the Civic Union is invincible, because it has an immense majority all over the Republic. All that was needed for achieving a victory was a firm and decided will to unite against official opposition.

—The Convention of the Provincial Party of Buenos Aires assembled on Monday and sanctioned the nomination of Drs. Roque Saenz Peña and Pizarro as the candidates of the party for the presidency and vice-presidency of the Republic respectively.

—We regret to announce the death of Mr. Patrick M'quire, the well-known estanciero, of Capilla, who died somewhat suddenly at his city residence, Calle Lavalle 1471, on Tuesday morning.

—The Committee of the Spanish Club has resolved to invite the presidents of all the Spanish Societies in the Capital to attend a conference on the best way of celebrating the next centenary of the discovery of America.

—Dr. Carlos Rojo, the Argentine Sanitary delegate in Rio Janeiro, has resigned. It appears that he has never made proper reports to the Sanitary Department of the state of sanitary matters in Rio. Being remonstrated with for this neglect and for general neglect of his duties, he presented his resignation, which was accepted by the Board of Health, and Dr. Antonio del Viso, Junr, was appointed to replace him, but when the Minister of Foreign Affairs was asked to sanction the resignation and appointment he declined to do so until Dr. Rojo had given his reasons for resigning.

—The Archbishop, in his «memoria» presented to the Minister of Worship declares that the law of civil marriage ought to be repealed, because, in consequence of the large extent of the departments and the difficulties and delays of the Register offices, marriages have diminished by one half, and because the law is unconstitutional, for the Church was «in possession» of matrimony as a divine institution and fulfilled its duties satisfactorily, and the Constitution protects the Church. But if the law cannot be entirely repealed, it ought to be altered so as to allow the civil marriage to be celebrated either previously to or after the religious marriage, and that as there are not sufficient registries, the parish curates, who are at all hours at the disposition of the public, ought to be the Registrars. B. A. Herald.

No one can spend ten cents to better advantage than by procuring a bottle of «Bijous» «Crab Apple Blossoms» which the Bazar Enciclopedico, Teyford and Co., and many others are selling at this price. This Perfume is becoming more and more popular, and deservedly so.

CORRESPONDENCE

(The Editor is not responsible for opinions expressed under this head. Correspondents must accompany all letters with their names, not necessarily for publication, but as evidence of good faith.)

THE GOLD-MINE OF SAN GREGORIO
Its gold wasted—The credit of the country damaged.
When the gold from our mines is day by day lost into the rivers, the reputation of the mines and the value of the shares disappear with it. To remain longer silent about matters that should be known by all who are interested in the San Gregorio Gold Mine would not be right.

I refer to a fountain of national wealth that is visibly losing credit. I have myself made gigantic efforts to enable this country proudly to exhibit the inexhaustible treasures buried in its territory. But the demonstration of these treasures in the San Gregorio Mine (in London, 1885), as a sample of the whole Gold Region of Teouarembó, was left to persons who are not competent to follow the methods necessary to obtain success, so that after having suffered for years from the mistakes of management of the mines, and having used all the means that prudence and a desire for concord suggested, I am reluctantly obliged to make a revelation in the press of the facts as they exist, and thus bring them to a knowledge of all those who are interested in the San Gregorio Mine and in the mining interest of the whole country. Viz— that a large proportion of the ore at the above named mine is being allowed to escape while treating it in the mill.

I have seen by the London papers, that the Directory of this Mining Co. (The Gold Fields of Uruguay Ltd.) have declared to the shareholders at a meeting in London, that the ore of the San Gregorio mine is poor in quality and small in quantity, while I, in my scientific reports in the years 1885, 1886 and 1887, have declared to the Gentlemen who compose that Directory that the said mine was rich; that it contained millions of tons of ore; and my reports were fully confirmed by the Engineers sent by these Gentlemen from London in 1886 and 1887, to examine the mine.

These Engineers were Messrs. John F. Tregouing and Christopher James. All these reports were once again confirmed by the Engineer, Mr. John McCarthy of London, in the year 1887, after a careful study made by him of another mine near, at the instance of the «London Mercantile Association Limited» And I now declare once more that the San Gregorio mine is rich, that it contains millions of tons of ore, and that the past and present technical directors of the mine (always excepting Mr. O. James) have allowed, and still do allow great quantities of gold to escape into the river below, and also, that all the «gold-bearing pyrites» (concentrations) are wasted.

Every sixty tons of the quartz and pigmatite of this mine contains one ton of pyrites, which contains about Eight ounces of gold and Eight ounces of silver. This was proven in 1886, by the analyses of Messrs. Mc Dermot and Duffield, Chemists, No. 2 Wall St. New York.

For myself I prefer to see the work stopped at the San Gregorio mine and the doors sealed up, rather than tolerate any longer what is occurring there, to the discredit of the whole country.

«The Mining World and Engineers Record» of Jan. 2 says—
«Gold Fields of Uruguay»
«The great want of this company is a slightly increased richness in its ores. It produces enormous quantities and passes them through the mill, but the value per ton is not sufficient to pay cost. Some trouble has been experienced during the year with the Manager, from whom it has been impossible to get accounts, reports, or anything that a Manager should forward to his board. And in order to enquire into matters on the spot Mr. Herbert Akers (the Secretary) undertook a mission which is now concluded, and when he returns in Feb, he will, at a meeting of the shareholders, make a statement of the actual facts, the control of the mine, is sinking a shaft, and already the ore which in the quarry working was only worth about $2 1/2 is now worth $4. Should this be maintained the expenses not inordinately increased the company can make profit, the report of the meeting will show the pecuniary sacrifices the Directors have made to keep the concern on a sound financial basis.»

The following letters are from reliable men who live near the mine and are good practical miners of many years standing. I insert them as a reply to the above article, they will enable the reader and the public to judge if I am right as to the facts declared. The originals of these letters are in my possession.

Corrales, Jan. 24th 1892.
Professor Clemente Barrial Posada,
My Dear Sir.
«According to the declarations made to me by the men now working at the San Gregorio mine, they are losing more than half the gold contained in the ore, in the process of milling it.»

«On the 21st inst, the mill was stopped in the morning to take up the sand in the ditch, which, as I was told, contained a great deal of «amalgam» (gold and quicksilver) even more than the plates and «batteries» contained.»

«It is a pity that the company to which the mine belongs has not been able up to the present time to find a man competent to treat the ore. If matters continue on in this way it will be only a short time before the monthly ingot of gold sent to London will dwindle down to nothing. The way they are working the mine, it is impossible to give profits.

I remain your sincere friend and servant,

(Signed) Manuel Torregrosa. Professor Clemente Barrial Posada. My Dear Sir.

After saluting you respectfully I am going to tell you something that will interest you and some of your friends.

It is this, that the San Gregorio mine is a mill at the San Gregorio mine is a great deal of gold!

I made an assay of the sand in the ditch that carries away the water used to treat the ore in the mill, and it gave most surprisingly rich results.

Then I made another assay and this gave a still more valuable result, a more surprising quantity of gold.

Wishing to give notice of this to the manager of the mine, Mr. William Edwards, I requested Dr. Davidson to obtain for me permission to work over the sands in the ditch aforesaid, because they contained a great deal of gold.

I told Dr. Davidson that the gold I could obtain would make me rich. Dr. Davidson told this to the manager, who replied that I could work the ditch for I would find nothing; and when Dr. Davidson left, the manager told him to tell me that when the mill stopped to clean up the gold in the batteries and plates, he would give me the ditch, but three days afterwards I went, and he told me he would not give me the ditch because it contained much gold.

You will understand Sir, that had I been a different man and had taken the sand without saying anything, I should have made my fortune.

The mill still continues to waste gold the same as before. It is carried away by the muddy water to the ditch and onward to the river. If you will come to the mine I will demonstrate, within twenty-four hours, by a small dam (reducto) in the ditch, the gold that is being lost. It is a fact that because of the information I gave, the manager can obtain thousands of dollars for the company from the sand in a small part of said ditch.

Buckets full of pure gold amalgam can be taken from there, all that I say I can prove. If you will come I will make the assays in your presence that you may be convinced and believe me, for I do not lie. I shall expect your reply by the first mail, provided this notice is of any use to you.

I remain your sincere friend, and servant.

(Signed) Fermán Paz Brizola San Gregorio Jan. 26th 1892.

Not twenty miles like the last (the 26th) remittance to London but a whole quintal of gold should be obtained every month, there is gold enough in the ore worked to produce that quantity, the shares should be worth at least four times their par value and the Gold Region of Tacuarembó should have at this time, world wide fame for its richness.

It has had come to pass the State, by an arrangement with me, could have offered a part of said Region, which belongs to me, as a guarantee for a National Loan and thus have saved the financial situation of the country.

But while in this sense the National credit is at the mercy of the judgment of a Director in London, 2000 leagues away, which neglects prudent and opportune counsels during years of bad administration at the San Gregorio mine, tolerating impudently the declining value of the property rather than remove immediately an English employee who, besides other faults, allowed the greater part of the gold from the mine to escape into the river, while such things are allowed, it is useless to struggle for the maintenance of the credit of the National Mining Industry.

Men of Science are required there and good managers for the San Gregorio mine.

LONDON NOTES

MONDAY, JANUARY 18. Last night's "Court Circular" contains an official announcement of the fact that the funeral of the late Duke of Clarence will, by the Queen's wish, take place at St. George's Chapel, Windsor, on Wednesday afternoon, with military honours. Her Majesty will not, it is believed, undertake a railway journey in the present state of the weather, but will attend a memorial service to be held at the hour of interment, at Osborne. Neither the Princess of Wales nor her daughters will attend the obsequies. The Duke of Cambridge had made arrangements to come from Cannes to take part in the ceremonial, but, on the repeated advice of the Prince of Wales, he has abandoned the intention, and will remain in the South of France.

A correspondent at Sandringham telegraphs that on Friday night the body of the Duke of Clarence was conveyed from Sandringham House to the adjoining church, and on Saturday members of the Royal Family attended a service held within the sacred edifice. Yesterday another service was held at which, although the general public were not admitted, the household, representatives of the Press, and other persons, as well as the Royal mourners, were present.

On Wednesday morning a detachment of the 10th Hussars, the regiment of which the late Duke was major, will escort the body from Sandringham Church to Wolferton Station, the coffin being borne upon a gun carriage. The remains will be conveyed to Windsor direct. There will be no procession through London. At Windsor the coffin will be again placed upon a gun carriage, officers of the 10th Hussars, including Lord Downe, the colonel commanding, will act as pall-bearers, and another detachment will escort the coffin through the streets to St. George's Chapel. The way will be lined by troops, with arms reversed and colours lowered.

Some progress was made at the West London Police-court on Saturday with the proceedings that have been brought against M. Louis Clovis Bonaparte and Mr. William A. Thomson, a solicitor, for having, it is alleged, conspired to defraud Rosale Clovis Bonaparte of a quantity of jewellery, valued at 20,000 francs. Prosecution was under cross-examination, and a further remand was granted, defendants being, as before, admitted to bail.

THE DEATH OF THE DUKE OF CLARENCE.

The worst has happened. The Duke of Clarence and Avondale is dead. His serious illness was only announced on Monday morning, and on Thursday morning, at a quarter-past nine, came the end. We use no words of exaggeration when we say that no calamity connected with the Royal Household has brought such public sympathy with it since the night when the great bell of St. Paul's started the metropolis in alarm, the death of the Prince Consort. Even then it must be remembered that the death of that much-lamented Prince had nothing to do with the succession to the Throne. The same, or almost the same, may be said of the death of the Duke of Albany. Everybody sorrowed for the death of the young Prince, but he had not stood high in the line of succession, he was not looked upon as the future King of England. Nor was there in either case the melancholy romance that surrounds the death-bed of the Duke of Clarence. The Duke of Clarence dies, as it might almost be said, on the eve of his bridal. Only a day or two ago people were saying cheerily that after all the marriage would not have to be put off, that the young Duke would be quite well in time for the appointed day. We all hoped, and even believed, that things were going well, and it was only the day before yesterday that the general hope gave way almost in a moment to general despondency. The news of yesterday came with a shock, but not the shock of that must ever come when that which is feared is actually realised and made certain. The people of all these countries will lament, not only for the young life, the life with so great a prospect before it, which is thus suddenly cut off, but for the young unwedded widow, the light of whose life has gone out. Few dramatists, few novelists, have ever ventured on the description of a situation made suddenly so tragic.

The Duke of Clarence and Avondale was unquestionably a popular Prince. The present Royal Family are, indeed, thoroughly appreciated by the nation. The Queen is in simple truth the first really constitutional sovereign this country has ever known. Even her immediate predecessor, William IV., struggled hard for what he believed to be his prerogative of dictatorship. The bare idea of a really constitutional monarchy had hardly entered into the mind even of the latest of the Georges, although he had had Fox and Sheridan for his companions. When the end came for Frederick, Prince of Wales, son of George II., the country in general was utterly indifferent, and a good many people, including some members of his own family, were greatly relieved. Times have changed since then, and our ruling family now make it their business, and we are sure find it their pleasure to deserve popularity in all classes and sections of the community. No Princess probably was ever more universally popular in a country than her own than the Princess of Wales. The mother of the poor young Duke who lies dead has made herself among us. Any one who carries his mind back to the days when the introduction of a foreign lady into an English Royal Household was an event to be followed by the darkest suspicion and the bitterest jealousies will be able in a moment to make an effective and an instructive contrast between the present and the past. The Prince of Wales has always borne himself as a courteous gentleman and a sympathetic and most untiring public man, untiring as regards all the public duties which belong to his position in the State. Everybody knew that his eldest son was winning for himself a popularity of his own, and not merely reflected from that of his father and his mother and his grandmother. Everybody looked on him as the probable head of the State and the probable head of the course of time it might be expected that he should succeed to the Throne. But fate has darkly interposed. We do not remember any other instance in history quite so touching of a Royal marriage contracted suddenly and tragically interrupted. It was to be a marriage of love, as the Queen's marriage was, as the marriage of their daughter Victoria was; as the marriage of the Prince and Princess of Wales was. In all monarchical countries it is certain that there are a good many marriages with which, almost as a matter of necessity, love has nothing to do. In our Royal Family of late years we have been happy to know that the marriages are almost always marriages of affection, and not of State convenience.

The sad entry of the immortal Duchess of Malfi is that "the birds which live in the air on the wild benefit of nature live happier than we, as they can choose their mates." That was harshly true of the Duchess of Malfi's time and of times ever so much more recent than hers. But it is not true of our times and of our Royal Family. The whole people were waiting with interest and with sympathy for the union of the Duke of Clarence with his young bride, whom it was known that he had chosen, and who was known to have chosen him for love's sake, just as the poorest peasants might have formed a love match. Every heart in all the land was filled with a wish for their abiding happiness. The future seemed all bright and radiant before them. The wedding festivities were arranged. Public bodies all over the country were voting addresses of congratulation. It was not a mere question of loyalty—the loyalty was taken for granted, and hardly could have needed any expression. It was a question of sympathy, of affection, of good wishes, of hope for the future of the young Prince and the girl whom he was to marry. Now in a moment the wedding music is turned into a dirge, and for the marriage garlands are to be substituted the funeral wreaths. Is sympathy of any avail to the survivors of such an event? "Not all the preaching since Adam," say Mr. Russell Lowell, "has made death other than death." No, indeed. But yet it must be hoped that when the full force of the first shock has somewhat spent itself, even the Princess who has thus been most cruelly bereaved may find some poor little light of consolation in the knowledge that a nation sympathised heartily in her grief and mourned, with her and for her.—Daily News Jan. 15.

AMERICAN DENTISTS BOURSE AND HILL CERTIFIED SPECIALISTS 351—SARANDI—351

The new system and great secret of placing crowns and bridges of gold and porcelain, and beautiful artificial teeth without plates, practiced in full perfection and security, for the first time in this capital, by the specialist surgeon-dentist W. E. Hill, Sarandi 351, is a true and noble advancement in dental science. Witness the following certificate of the eminent North American specialist, Dr. Horsey.—

CERTIFICATE. Dr. Horsey, Surgeon-Dentist of New-York, specialist in crown and bridge work. I certify and declare that Dr. W. E. Hill, surgeon-dentist, is entirely competent to practice with all safety dental crown and bridge work. I also certify that Dr. Hill has performed in my presence a number of these works of art in the most careful description, completely and perfectly, proving to me that he is the only person in Montevideo who possesses the true secret of this novel, useful and noble process, the only one who has the apparatus, the experience, knowledge and skill indispensable to be able to employ with success the most modern, positive and beautiful process as yet known in dentalscience. 132 pm.

Ricketty and scrofulous children recover their vital forces by the use of Scott's Emulsion. Montevideo, Oct. 20, 1891. I can certify that Scott's Emulsion is an undoubted excellent medicine. With a child affected with rickets, for whom I prescribed it, it gave admirable results, and I have also been able to appreciate its good effects in many other cases in which I have prescribed it. Sirion Flanders.

(A SHORT STORY.)

John let his large grey eyes wander wistfully up the hill to the Manor House, standing amidst blossoming orchards. Easter was late, and the pale apple-bloom recalled the pretty flush in Sirion's cheeks.

"He might easily admire her, and care for her too," he thought. "There are few faces as sweet as hers." "Of course" any idea of an engagement is all off now that the girl's a pauper," declared Prudence.

"A what?" exclaimed John indignantly. "She is nothing of the kind. I'm her executor. I ought to know. She has the same as her sisters. If she doesn't choose to spend her fifty pounds on herself, she's in the right of it. What would little Hugh have done if Sirion had been as selfish as those two old maids? I can't say how I honour her. As for being a nursery governess, I'm sure Mrs. Dowles will treat her as a lady. She's rough-and-ready, but she's a kindly, downright, hearty woman. To my mind, Sirion Flanders is a heroine."

"Oh, of course, anything Sirion does is right. If you think so much of her, John, how do you like her going about as she does with Calvert? Perhaps she'll look him after all. I met them as I came down to the Rectory. She looked as if she'd been crying. Perhaps she'd been entreating him not to forsake her. Black certainly doesn't suit some people."

"Neither does blackening one girl's character become another," said her brother bitterly.

"It's quite true, John. Calvert Eyre, of course, was obliged to break off with her when her father died a bankrupt."

"A man who breaks his engagement with a girl because she becomes poor is a scoundrel, and deserves horsewhipping. I should like to tell Calvert Eyre what I think of him. Gentleman as you call him, he should find a farmer's whip bite his aristocratic shoulders for him, if I could believe it true," said John Bloomfield angrily.

"You do as you like about that," returned Prue. "It's quite true, Sirion's always after him."

"I don't believe it, Prue. I don't believe Sirion's that sort of girl. You're friends with her two silly sisters, so you spite Sirion because they do. They're angry because she's so good and kind, and so young and pretty," asserted John.

"Pretty, indeed! I tell you she looked quite ugly just now in black—quite plain."

John left his sister to go her way, and walked slowly towards home. He didn't believe a word she had said about Sirion Flanders. In his heart he gave the girl credit for all she seemed to him to be—open-hearted, truthful, and upright.

"Pretty indeed," he repeated to himself as he leaned for a while against his own gate. "Sirion Flanders is too pretty; it makes every plain woman hate her, and every moderately good-looking woman envious of her. Pretty indeed," and, coming over the churchyard, her head bent, and her eyes looking downwards, came the girl he was thinking of.

"Pretty is no word for such a picture," thought the young churchwarden, and did not move, least he should disturb her meditations. He guessed where she had been—to her father's grave, to put some fresh lile token of love for herself or the boy Hugh. She was not so rosy as before that father's death and the burden of responsibility that had fallen upon her since these troubles, but there was still a sweet, wild rosebud colour in her cheeks, and the long, curling brown lashes shaded soft grey eyes that John hoped would look up at him with shy but pleased surprise when she met his gaze.

"Black not suit her!" thought he, as he watched the soft dark folds of her dress moving gracefully about her small figure, and saw the wayward locks of her light brown hair curling on her neck under a small black hat. There were but few signs of mourning in her dress as far as crape betokened it, but there was a pathetic loneliness in her very presence there among the graves that went to John Bloomfield's tender heart. He wanted to watch her un- seen as long as he could, but much as he enjoyed the scrutiny, he could hardly forbear rushing forward and holding out his hand that she might at least be sure of his sympathy in her sorrow.

But he manfully repressed his longing, and waited till the soft grey eyes, with still a trace of tears, looked up suddenly into his face, and to his pained amazement the sorrow that had been there faded, and was replaced by a look that tried to be hard and proud.

"Good-day, Sirion," he said, wondering, but offering his hand, only to see her clasp the satchel she carried nervously to her, evidently to avoid shaking hands with him. "Aren't you going to shake hands with me?"

SCRAPS

—First Cousin: It is annoying that our names are the same. You often get my letters, and I often get yours. Second Cousin (sweetly but insinuatingly): "Well, why don't you ask your friends to put 'senior' after your name when they address letters to you?" —If it wasn't for hope the heart would break as the old lady said when she buried her seventh husband.
