POLITICAL NOTES.

The sensation of yesterday was furnished by the Nacion which revealed what may -or may not - be Sr Cuestas final plan to get him self confirmed in the presidency without going to the extremity of dissolving the Chambers. Pursuing its enquiry of the previous day •Why a Dictatorship ?> the Nacion says that the problem may be solved easily and without violence in the following manner; we quote its own words.

«Suppose, for example, that on rebruary 14 a majority of the Sen-ators obstinately deny their vote to Sr. Cuestas as President of the Senate, with the object of trans ferring the supreme command to other hands. In such case, is it not to be feared that the people, seeing their just aspirations defrauded. would disavow the authority of those Senators hostile to their egitimate desires, refuse to accept he new election, and exact from Sr. Cuestas that he remained in his post? In this hypothesis, how could the conflict be solved? By making use of force? But, is it certain that the army, in such a case, would be disposed to fire upon the people? And who would have the temerity to take the responsibility for such a deed ? In the presence of a popular effer-vescence of this kind, the inevita-ble result might very well be the elimination of certain recalcitant elements and the legal convocation of the corresponding substitutes, in order that the Senate, thus integrated, might at length satisfy the popular wishes and resolve the presidential question in conform ity with the same. So much the Senate. Transferring the problem to the presidential election by the General Assembly on March the Nacion continues: - «In this hypothesis (that the Assembly refused to elect Sr. Cuestas) who does not foresee that the complications will be still greater, and as inevitable as the effects of a hurcican? Who does not foresee the opposition members of the Assembly provoking, by their own atti tude public anger and indignation? Who can foresee the tre-mendous effects of an outburst of passions, and the sacrifices that will be exacted to main-tain order and reestablish public tranquillity? In the terrible dilemma of repressing a revolution that threatens to fill the country once mere with blood, or the momentary removal of the perturbing elements, the choice cannot be doubtful. Before precipitating the country anew into the horrors of civil war, would it not be a thousand times preferible to list en to the public demands and satisfy popular aspirations? The en to the public demands and satisfy popular aspirations? The removal of certain political agitators and the reintegration of the Assembly by the convocation of their substitutes, might at a given moment impose itself as the inevitable solution in order to avoid fresh bloodeded and fresh convulsions of the national organism.»

- Thus, the plan is to deport or to put under arrest recalcitrant members of the opposition until a maority can be secured in Sr. CuesThe above declaration caused no little comment yesterday, but no one knew whether to take it seriously or not. The Dia, which might be looked to for information, confines itself to reproducing the article of the Nacion without any comment whatever. We cannot say that the plan is one to be viewed with favor. Imprison ment or deportation of opposition legislators combines both violent and intimidation, and is from every point of view a very much worse The above declaration caused no point of view a very much worse and more reprehensible resource than a frank dissolution of the entire Assembly, a dissolution having its justification in the gross impurity of origin and in the popul-ar repudiation of the Chambers. But for Sr. Cuestas to retain those egislators who tavored him and smite those who opposed him, would only complete the degrad uation of the Chambers as a public power, and place him in a more unconstitutional and unbecoming position than was ever Dr. Julio Herrera or Sr. Idiarte Borda.

In addition to the above declaration, yesterday's Rason practically non, yesterday's Razon practically confirms the statement that Sr. Cuestas will not deliver up the Executive Power on February 14, even if a different President of the Senate is elected. According to the Razon, Sr. Cuestas has inimated this to Senator Freire, in order that he much communicate it to his he might communicate it to his colleagues, and also to other persons. Sr. Cuestas claims in hs favor a resolution communicated to the General Assembly by Joaquin Suarez, in a similar situation in 1852, in which Sr. Suarez claims that, the President of the Sanate having constitution of the Sanate having constitution. dent of the Senate having once taken possession of the Executive Power, he is only entitled to sur-render it to a constitutionally elected President on March 1. This is precisely the view we de fended in our article of December 17 We are waiting for our contemporaries to express their opinion on the point, which the Kason already promises to do.

Yesterday's Siglo repeats an unpleasant rumor to the ellect that the Government will apply to the Chambers to reimpose the 2 1/2 ° additional Custom's duty, which expired a few days ago ullotting 11/2 % to the Cardad Hospital and 1 % to the general revenue. The Dia, however, denies that any such intention exists at present. Certainly the step would be both unwise and unpop ular. One of the causes of the sym pathy with Sr. Cuestas candidature in commercial circles is the hope that he will diminish some of the terrible burdens on commerce, and this would certainly be a bad be-

These seems some doubt as to the result of the election in Flores, last Sunday, of the Senatorial Elec-toral College, but according to latest account it will most probaby be in lavor of Dr Aureliano Ro driguez Larreta. So respectable a personage will be a great acquis-ition to the upper Chamber, which has been degraded to the lowest degree by the unworthy puppeth and nonentities placed in it by Julio Herrera and Idiarte Borda. It is said that Don Guillermo Kubly y Arteaga will replace Sr. Bernabe Mendoza as Prefect of Salto. The change will not be an improvement

The Representatives met yes-terday and succeeded in producing a quorum. The discussion of Electoral Reform, however, was deterred until Thursday, some of the Deputies claiming that they had not had sufficient time to study it -though it has been before the country for years. No other business was transacted.

THE VALUE OF INDIA-RUBBER.

SPECTATOR. India-Rubber is in a fair way to become one of the prime necessities of civilisation Numberless human beings, in the class which could not afford wet nurses owe their lives to the feeding bottle. Every body knows that in the last five years the use of pheumatic tyres for cycles and solid rubber tyres for horse-vehicles has enormously increased our consumption of this article, but quite apart from that more obvious fact, india rubber is daily being introduced more and the output could be doubled within a year, so many new applications of the material would instantly arise, that the price would not fall appreciably As a matter of fact, the export of Para rubber has in creased within the last twenty five years from 5,600 tons to 20,000 years from 5,000 tons to 20,000 tons; and the price fetched by the best quality has risen from 2s to 3s. a pound. It is the one jungle product which society finds indispensable. Hundreds of men have racked their brains to produce a substitute, but none has in the least degree succeeded; and such attempts must be permanently disattempts must be permanently discouraged by the knowledge that india rubber exists in iimitless profusion upon known spots of the world's surface

which may at any time be made accessible. In any of the swampy equatorial regions, where vegetation grows rank and sappy, so that a knife will slash through branches as if they were made of branches as if they were made of cheese, there is pretty certain to occur some one or two of the score of trees which produce rub-ber. Whole forests of them are known to exist in Central Africa, only waiting to be impred. But the regions which produce them are precisely the regions most deadly to the white man; and when the rubber is made has to come to the coast on the heads of negroes, and will not pay the cost of transport. When an accessible forest is discovered it pays like a goldmine. A tree was dis covered near Lagos which was be-lieved to produce rubber; speci-mens of bark and foliage went home to Kew, and the authorities pronounced it the right thing. In 1×95 the export began and amounted in the year to 2,263 tons, with a value of £270 000 in round figures. India-rubber would seem to be the one certain's urce of wealth now locked up in Central Africa, and perhaps the most valuable thing that the region produces or can produce. Ivory is only a fancy article and pain oil has many sub-stitutes. Gold no doubt exists there, but, in the first place it is doubtful whether the pure negro can be made into a miner; and in the second, gold is to be got in regious where white men can live. It seems, therefore, as it the special function of the tropics just now was to produce india rubber, which is wanted everywhere and can-not be grown elsewhere. No cultivation is needed; Nature requires of man very little skill, scarcely any exertion, and only a reasonable avoidance of waste. Yet this is asking more than the African negro is at present able to give The great rubber-producing region of the world is the basin of immensely superior to all others; the best Para will fetch in England worst African goes for under a shilling. Brazil has of course, an immense advantage in its great waterway; ocean going steamers run twelve hundred miles up the Amazon, whereas every African river except the Congo has a bar at its mouth, and cataracts not far distant from the coast-line. On the other hand, the torests in Brazil seem even more impenetrable than in Africa Not, even such roadways as the African man paths can be maintained against the encroachment of the jungle. But the native Brazilian race is incomparably more intelligent than the negro. Their caoutch uc is better prepared, and what is far more important, they farm the trees as carefully as the Red Indians used to farm the beaver. In Africa the rubber is generally produced not from a forest tree, as in Brazil, but from the Landolphia, which is a climbing shrub. The supply of rubber-producing plants in Central Africa is practically inexhaustible; but the number of places where they exist within easy distance of some export station is small, so far as our pre sent knowledge goes. Yet for the present speculators will probably hasten to be rich, and if they hit upon a forest will treat it like a mine, anxious simply to take out the maximum at the minimum of Whether our State, or any other, will over make this a great branch of its tropical forestry remains to be seen. The Germans, with their usual thoroughness, have a strong scientific staff at the Cameroons. The English, in their usual makeshift way, content themselves with sending home to Kew for sugges tions. But the Government of India have at least tried an experiment upon the great scale. No private firm, however wealthy, would embark upon the cultivation of india rubber; the trees take a matter of twenty years be fore they can produce a penny-worth in addition. European can enter it during the ratny season and where the growth is so thick that twenty men might Nevertheless, the Indian Government have a nursery of Para rubber trees in Assam, extending over two hundred square miles, which will in time begin to yield; and it any department can convol such a farm the Indian Woods and Forests will.

The ship's papers have been saved.

Fatal Accident.

An extraordinary accident occurred on Monday evening at the lodging house Camaras 61, which is occupied by some humble Italian families. On the asotea (flat roof) of this house wires had been stretched from side to side, for hanging out clothes to dry.
On Monday evening a telephone wire also crossing the roof had

The woman Josefa Esposito, aged 56, having occasion to go on the root, in the dusk, came into contact with one of the wires and she received a se-vere electric shock which threw her to the ground. Club. Proposing the toast of Literature, he discussed the modern novel. It was, he said, hard to believe there was a time when the world did without novels. Like obacco and the daily Press, they had now become a general necess-ity. But while Scott had had the good fortune to open a new vein, the modern novelists were so hardly set for new subjects that they extrated the quintessence of dulness for the subject of their books; the decadence of the modern novel would have to be looked for in the obvious difficulty of novelists getting appropriate subjects.

present, though it had been rumoured that he would be. He had instructed a solicitor. After a sitting of two hours, the lury returned a verdict of Wilful murder against Prince, and expressed their sympathy with Mr. Terriss's family.

Yesterday the coroner's inquest in the matter of the murder of Antoning Prosette, in his lodgings in course of a brief speech, expressed concurrence with the scheme, adding that the Fund would aim at discouraging extravagance in the maintenance of hospitals.

Mr. A J. Ballour last night attended the fourth annual dinner of the Edinburgh Sir Walter Scott Club. Proposing the toast of Literature, he discussed the modern novel. It was, he said, hard to been issued by the Chief Magistrate at Bow-street.

An incident of the litigation which has arisen respecting the validity of incandescent gas mantles was mentioned in the Court of Appeal yesterday. It had reference to a committal order which Mr. Justice Day had made on Saturday morning against Mr. Reimer, the defendant in an action brought some eighteen months ago by the Incandescent Light Company, for an injunction to restrain the defendant from infringing their patents. At the present moment Mr. Reimer was locked up in Hollowav for alleged contempt of court. After hearing arguments the Court held that the order should not have been made, and directed that it should be forthwith discharged

George heard him addressed as Lord Dunstanley, saw that Olive looked pleased and more excited, but that Lady Constance looked extraordinarily annoyed; and heard him say, the platform being narrow, at am going as far as Glasgow in this train. I wish you had room for me in here. It is such an awful age since I saw you.

eince I saw you.»

«Papa would rather go into a smoking-carriage.» George actually heard Olive say, in her clear, sweet treble. He was convinced that the meeting was prestranged—arranged no doubt in the moonlight last night. But then—

night. But then—

So you are going to the Bynge's, at Dunkeld? said Lord Dunstanley, after some confusion of reluctant invitation and unwilling refusal. I know them awfully well: at least, Harry Byng is a great friend of mine. They have capital shooting, and no one to enjoy it now Harry is in Egypt. Sir Philip is, of course, past shooting now, poor old chap. What a sintul waste of game! I is preposterous to think of its being thrown away upon one gun. I can get myself asked to Birman any time I like. Don't be surprised if I turn up there directly after you.

That will be too delightful, said

"That will be too delightful," said

Olive.

But to George's surprise, Lady Constance looked quite cared, as it she wanted to say something and dared not. She could not forbid a house that was not her own to the young man, nor in common politeness object to his presence there. Lord Dunstanley seemed not to notice her silence, being entirely occupied with Olive's opinion on the subject. Then the bell rang, and Lord Dunstanley was ordered off by a guard to his own compartment, and the train steamed away.

George returned in the depths and the train steamed away.

George returned in the depths of misery to Baronthorpe. There was no reason why he should stay on there, but neither was there any reason for being in any other place except Dunkelk, and Lord Dunstaniey's promised presence there made his impossible. It was all so strange, bewildering, and inoredible. Why should Lady Constance seem so deeply annoyed at Lord Dunstanley's attentions? Mrs. Scott said it was the height of her ambition that her daughter should receive such attentions. He could not leave the place until he had seen some sort of light thrown upon the mystery. He kept quiet for that day, and next day went to see the Hunts.

For once tennis was not going on.

For once tennis was not going on.

Vera was copying music in the drawing-room. Mrs. Hunt was superintending preserving in the kitchen, but came in and out between times.

«No, tennis is not over,» Vera replied to George's question; «in-deed, it will go on with greater vigour. We have got one additional tennisplayer, if not two; Mr. Charlie Urqu-

«To make up for the loss of the Dancombes.>

«Ou! the Dancombes never count. They are such odd people; so proud and so very mysterious. Do you know there is quite a fittle soundar about them? They have left the Park so suddenly after only being back a week or two, and we had neard they had come to stay. They went abroad just in the same way two years ago, and no one ever heard any reason given except just weat is given now: Olive's health.>

«But what is there scandalous in

«Nobody ever hears what is the «Nobody ever hears what is the matter with ner, and she always looks quite well. Sue is certainly a very quiet sort of girl, and keeps away from every sort of amusement that is going. They say there is a reason for keeping her out of society as they do; her health, of course; but Mr. Snowe, our doctor here, is never called in to her, though he has been doctor at the Park ever since he bought the practice They always bought the practice They always have a doctor from Redminster, ten miles off.>

George felt like the meanest of spice as he listened. His tongue returned to assist him by question He made a half-articulate sound of attentive interest,, and Vera wen.

They say she was not always in a fit stats to be seen—no, not that, as George leaped to his lest in indignant horror; «but Mr. Snows says taking morphia is only too common among women, and even girls of her class, and especially among girls whose nerves have been strained by too much study. I suppose she must suffer from insomnie, and having once acquired the babit cannot give it up. Of course, if she really does take it, that will account for everytake it, that will account for everything >

"What a wicked story; got up out of professional jealousy!> cried Geor-ge, «The man deserves to be struck off the rolls for it -or whatever is the equivalent punishment in his profession. Morphia—it is horrible! The vilest slauder!

«Oh, we don't quite believe lt,» said Muss Hunt, «and poor Mr.
Snows did not originate it. He was only asked if it were not a likely explanation of Miss Duncombe's strange conducts

«Do you mean to say that a lady

But it was not only living quietly. It was the odd things she did.
We only heard yesterday, after they had gone to Scotland, There was a garden-party at the Freres. They have a visitor, a Mrs. Wynne, and we were talking about the Duncombes,
and how sundenly they had gone away just after coming home.
