NEWS OF THE DAY

MONTEVIDEO

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1898

POLITICAL NOTES.

The prominent topic of the day is the epetty Panama. affair briefly referred to in our last. At the spe cial sitting of the Council of State held on Thursday evening, Sr. Berindague, speaking on behalf of the Committee of Foment, said that reports had reached the Committee of trafficking in votes with regard to the concession for a live stock wharf at the Buceo. On account of this the Committee had summoned Sr Rowley y Solsona the applicant for the concession, and he had made certain revel ations, of so serious a character that it was necessary for the good name of the Council for the matter name of the Council for the matter to be cleared up. It was therefore asked that an Investigating Committee be formed for the purpose. A motion to this effect was then put to the vote and was carried unanimously, without discussion. The Committee was accordingly constituted as follows; Sres. Herrero y Espinosa, Dufort y Alvarez, Alonso, Ferreira, Maza, Etcheverria and Donaldo MacEachen. The sitting then concluded. Our contemporaries publish the result of lengthy interviews with the two principal parties in the affair, namely Sr. Rowley y Solsona and the Gouncillor Sr. A. O. Vil lalba, but they do not seem to us to give a very coherent idea of the affair, nor does the accusation of corruption seem to rest, so far, on a very formidable basis; though, of course, there may be more behind that has not yet been made public. Sr. Rowley's tale is that he had become convinced there was organised and interest-ed obstruction to the approval of his concession, though it ask-ed nothing from the public purse and was of great public utility. He had known this to be the case under the previous administration, when, in consequence of his relusal to give a group of blackmailers $30,000 and 20 % of the profite, his scheme had been shelved. He had lately come to the conclusion that the same thing was occurring again, and that there was an or ganised group of members of the council opposing his scheme for interested purposes, that is to say in the hope of trafficking their votes, and as much had been hinted to him by various friends. There then appeared a certain Pedro Saez who insignated that it was possible to insinuated that it was possible to overcome the opposition to his scheme for a consideration and offered to act as his intermediary in the matter. After some hesitation, Sr. Rowley consented to go further into the matter, and was then introduced to Sr. Villalba. The latter, according to Sr. Rowley professed to be ing to Sr. Rowley, professed to be able to secure the approval of the concession Sr Rowley refused - in fact was not in a position - to offer him a cash sum, but instead offered him a share in the enterprise. Sr. Villalba, after some day's interval, declined this on a card which forms the principal «piece of accusation.» Sr. Rowley then made another effort to yet his schame through but o get his scheme through, but,

Sr. Villalba makes light of the accusation. His tale is that he was accidentally introduced to Sr. Rowley, who asked him to act as his parliamentary agent or attorney to get the scheme expedited. Sr. Vil lalba said that if he did this he would be unable to vote for the scheme in the Council and that his connection with it must be per-fectly public and above board. On consideration, however, and not caring for the terms Sr. Row-ley offered, he rojected the business, and since then they had not met, nor had he occupied bimsell with the matter The rest of the sto-ry, says Sr. Villalba, is merely a malicious invention and an intri-Thus the matter stands, and it remains for the Investigating Committee to get at the truth are two points worth noting.

The first is that the opposition to the passing of the scheme, which Sr. Solsona describes as interested, probably proceeded from official quarters, for the Executive has only recently passed a Message to the Council passed a Message to the Council asking for the discussion of the scheme to be deterred until next year, on the grounds that it would interfere with the plans for the gen-eral port of Montevideo, which also include wharves for embarkation of live stock. This is fully explained in yesterday's Nacion, and the ex-planation is most obviously bona Ade. The other point is that, so lar as has yet been made public, Sr. Rowley has been unable to formulate an accusation against any one except Sr. Villalba, and that it is quite possible the former has been victimised and deceived by some scamp who thought he saw his way to levying blackmail. The characters of the members of the Council of State are for the most part well and favorably known with a very few exceptions) and it is difficult to be lieve, without convincing proof, that a group of some twenty or twenty-five of them either would, or could without immediate exposure, be guilty of trafficking in their votes in the brazen manner alleged by Sr. Rowley. Anyhow it is satis-factory to note that the matter has been taken up vigorously--in a very different spirit to the similar scandal that occurred a few years ago-and the composition of the Investigating Committe is a guarantee that the truth will not be shirked or concealed. The result is awaited with impatience. The revolutionary alarms of a few days ago have quite died out, and there is no necessity to refer to them further for the present. Yesterday's Siglo comments on the recent arrest of two priests for infractions of the Law of Civil Register, and laments the artificial atmosphere that has been raised over the matter in ultra-Catholic circles, where they are represented as heroes and martyrs. It points out that the Minsters of a Church which is supported by the State, should be the first in inculcating respect for the laws, er, did we ever step in to preand that if they openly infringe vent Germany, France, and Rus-these they have no right to be sia from following our example? treated differently from other offenders. Ittranspires that Dr. Julio He rrera has sold two valuable houses n Cailes Canelones and San José, which he managed to snatch out of the liquidation of the National Bank, of funest memory. This has caused a tale to be started that he intends to devote the proceeds to the oft-threatened collectivists invasion. Those who know the ex-president, however, consider this very unlikely He has no objection to any sacrifices he may impose upon others, but he is not fond of undergoing them him-the world? Look at the privileges of Frenchmen in Australia as compared with those of Australians in New Caledonia! Look at the privileges of Germans in Singapore and Ceylon compared with those of Englishmen in German New Guinea! Look at the Rus-SOLIS THEATRE. Our anticipations regarding the spectacular ballet Die Puppen Fee, presented at this Theatre on Thursday evening, were not defrauded, and we may say at once that no more charming and complete entertainment of the description has been seen in Montevideo for many years. The production has been placed on the stage with the very first Russian Japtain (Soutcovoi) was, during four days, indoctrinated in the mysteries of most elaborate care, the mechanical- and electric light effects were very fine, and the costumes rich, varied and artistic, being also remarkable for their almost excessive modesty. The idea of the characters personating animated dolls is carried out very carefully throughout and the imit. missionaries are interfered with by the French in Madagascar. Ger carefully throughout, and the imitation of the stiff and angular move-ments of mechanical figures is many and France never dreamt of at once clever and amusing, whilst there is some very good dancing in the course of the representation. The effect when all the figures are consulting the interests of either ourselves or our colonies when they embarked upon their sugar they embarked upon their sugar-bounty policy: we never complain-ed, and as a matter of fact we do not like it; though it has in a way overshot its mark and profited the home section of us at their home consumers' expense. Our forefath ers made a bad bargain with in motion together on the stage under a blaze of electric lights is exceedingly fine. Amongst a long list of characters all admirably impersonated it is difficult to make selections, but we may make spe-cial mention of Sta. Morlac as a Doll Fairy who was a vision of the Newfoundland fishery treaties; but do we not protect the French rights loyally against the reas-onable yet politically impossible appeals of our own colonists? We have been the pioneers in railas he says, was again met by systematic opposition and by threats of rejection, one of the opponents being Sr. Villaba himself. He therefore resolved to extend the speaking doll, and afterwards for some very clever and agile solong the hydrogen in self-defence. pose the business in self-defence. dancing. The four young women way lines, steamships, machinery dressed as Bebés Jumeaux and for manufactures, the cheap Press, who led off the figure dances were also very clever in the manner in which they imitated doil movements. The music for the ballet is pretty and was well rendered by a good orchestra. Altogether the entertainment is most artistic, original, and pleas ing, and is calculated to send all children under seventy years of age wild with delight. It was received with every mark of approval by a crowded audience and will no doubt bear many repetitions.

It is to be regretted that the management could find no better prelude to so delightful a pro-duction than the two feeble Spanish duologues which occupied the stage until about 10.15 p.m. and which were worthy neither of the theatre nor the occasion. This is hardly the kind of fare to set before visitors to the Solis Theatre, and this part of the programme cer-tainly requires strengthening -or, better still, changing altogether. In any case it would be well to place the ballet, which is the only attraction, second on the programme, so that the many who do not feel in-terested in the rest of the pro-gramme may get home earlier.

«Die Puppen Fee» will be repeat

Seeing that the junction will be of great public convenience, the Municipality might have been satisfied with a smaller cative in the shape of restricted area and superabundant population? If Free Trade is good was it not open to others to adopt it ? If bad, what grudge need there be against Eng-land for uncomplainingly acquies-cing in the adoption by others of the wiser policy of Protection? -Yesterday morning's telegrams tried to make out that renewed activity was being imparted to the bellicose preparations in both England and France. -Tse meeting of the peace com-missioners in Paris on Thursday was again indecisive, and once more there are hints of a possible rupture. The latest crime committed by the U.S. Commissioners has been to present a document in English, a barbarous language which the Spanish commissioners do not pretend to understand. To culminate the offence, the document was type-written.

-Luccheni, the anarchist assassin of the unfortunate Empress of Austria, was brought before the Assize Court at Genova and Thursday, and after a brief trial was condemned to imprisonment for life, the highest penalty under the Swiss law. It being necess-ary, for the purposes of the ballet, to reduce the lights in the auditorium, this could only be done, as regards the lower tier. of boxes, by the inexpressibly clumsy expedient of sending round a man to turn them off burner by burner, there being no connection to raise or lower them all together. Such a thing seems hardly credible in a theatre pretending to be modern and first class. It is certainly time that the proprietors brought it more up to date in these respects

The plain truth of the matter is that many of these remarkable operations we hear of in local hospitals are simply experiments in vivisection, made on poor people, and would not be permitted in any other civilized country, where medical practitioners would stand a good chance of being arraigned on a criminal charge it they attempted such things. As a Minister who was with his colleagues jointly respon-sible to the early declarations as to the Nile Valley, he pointed out that they had been endorsed by the practically unanimous judgment of the people of this country. There could be no doubt that Egypt was, to adopt M. Hanotaux's phrase, athe legitimate mistress of the dis-trict, around Fashoda. Even it an attempt were made to give an of-ficial character to Major Marchand, the claim to Fashoda could not be sustained by international or private law. Public questions occupied the at-tention of the Congregational Union at Halitax yesterday. A resolution expreseing approval of the Czar's rescript was moved by the Rev. A. Goodrich, of Manchester, who expressed hearty approval of Lord Rosebery's speech on Fashoda.

Dr. Guinness Rogers seconded the resolution, and declared that the demand of France with regard to Fashoda was childish. His complaintagainst Lord Salisbury wa that, while professing to be seekin for peace, he had been indulging i a series of graceful concession which sooner or later must brin war. A committee was instructed prepare a statement expressing the views of the denomination as efreshment Department, June 24, 1896 To Messrs, James Buchanan & Co.Scotch Whisky Merchants, London, E. C.

Whisky Merchants, London, E. C. Gentlemen:

I am glad you have brought the matter before me, that a Scotch Whisky is being sold in the Colonies entitled «House of Lords» Scotch Whisky.

This may be to a certain extent misleading to the general public.

You are the only Firm who supplies this Department with Scotch Whisky in bottle, and I know nothing of any other Whisky sold on the market as «House of Lords.»

The Gold-digger's Promise

(A SHORT STORY)

«A promise is a promise, Miss Yorke!» said Rae sternly. «And if earth holds Jack Rivers's widow, she shall have every penny of it, and the interest as well. If she is dead and has left children, the money shall be paid to them.

Then I am afraid I must decline to help you to squander so much money, she returned sharply, even "fit were in my power to help you!"

"But I do not think it too high a price to have paid for my life, Miss Yorks. Had I not offered to pay it, I should not be here at this moment, to tell the tale. I think you said just now that you know Bramble Farm at Mallowmead? he continued, a Were you in the neighbourhood lately? It cannot be more than four years since Jack Rivers lived there. Can you remember at all the name of the people living there at that time ?

It seems to have changed bands more than once within the last few

«I was at Bramble Farm once only, for a day or two, when I took my niece, Lois, down there for her health,» conceded Miss Yorke unwillingly. «At that time the farm was kept by an old servant of mine, who had married. It would be just about four years ago that she died. You were nearly seventeen, I think, Lois? Do you remember—— Where is Lois, Celis? How rade of her to run Lois, Celis? How rude of her to run away like this! Go and call her back this minute; or, stay, I will ring and send Harvey to fetch her!.

«No, please, Miss Yorke!» pleaded Rae. «I thought she seemed a little upset with my story. It was quite natural. But I have grown so used to the thought of it that the pathos of the thing grows dim to me with the thing grows dim to me with althink Lois was rather upset. Mr. Havergill, said Celia, giving him a grateful look. «She is so tenderbearted, with all her calmness. Do you remember how she cried when Toodles fell out of the trap and broke his leg?

«I remember quite well!» returned cal remember quite wells returned Rae, smiling as he recalled the look in her lovely, tear drowned eyes, and how he thought, then, what deep pools of love they would be for some one to gaze into some day.

As Miss Yorke shook hands with him, sho relented so far as to tell him

she would obtain all the information she could about Bramble Farm by his next visit, albeit she maintained that forty thousand pounds was fer too much money to pay to Jack Rivers's widow.

CHAPTER VI.

Rae had slowly walked down balt the length of the drive when he saw Lois coming towards him. His heart gave a great bound. Lois was evidently waiting for him. She had never done this before.

He smiled down into her lovely eyes, which were looking up at him a little anxiously. She turned and walked by his side, uninvited. «Mr Havergill,» she said timidly.

«I want to apologise to you for my rudeness just now.» «Were you rude?» he asked quizzically. «In what way? I don't remember.>

«I-I mean in what I said about your letting Mr.—about your letting another man die to save your own

« It seemed cowardly, you though:?» «No; I cannot imagine your doing anything cowardly. But just at first it seemed a little unfair.

«Possibly. Still, you must consider all the circumstances of the case.

Nothing was further from my thoughts than that any man should give bie life for mine. el see it all, Mr. Havergill. I quite understand it all now, she said quickly.

«And it is because that poor fellow sold his life—forfeited though it doubtless was - that I am so anxious to pay the price claimed. I should bave gone down with the 'Derry' but for this young fellow's impetuous and romantic sacrifice, there is not a fraction of doubt in my mind.»

«But perhaps, as Aunt Paunence said, the young man was mad with fear, and did not know what he said or did, said Lois.

«He was as sane as you or I are at this moment, and as free from fear.» replied Rae.

"But," persisted Lois to Rac's vexation, whis widow may not be in want of money; or she may be dead. She must be dead, or she would surely have answered your adverlisements.>

«If she is dead, I will not rest till "If she is dead, I will not rest till I have found her grave; it she lives, I will not rest till have found her, and paid off my debt. But what makes you speak like this? You have some reason, I see you have. Tell me why you speak so? Tell me, Lois, he added tenderly, but firmly.

They had resolved the stile where Havereill had to out sorrest the fields.

Havergill had to out across the fields, and as they papsed beside it, he took ber two hands in his, and made her face bim.

To his surprise and consternation, she suddenly burst in to tears, «Why, what is it? What have I said?» he cried, drawing her nearer, and bending his head to look at her.

«Oh, let me gots she sobbed, trying to hide her face from his searching
