POLITICAL NOTES.

In the Council of State, on Mon-In the Council of State, on Monday, Dr. Campistegui was voted to the chair. A letter was read from Dr. J C. Blanco resigning the Presidency of the Council, and referred to Committee. Discussion of the Municipal Budget was resumed and concluded, increases being voted in several of the items. The sitting then terminated.

After the above sitting, on the initiative of Dr Schiaffno, an informal meeting of a number of initiative of Dr Schiallino, an informal meeting of a number of the Councillors was held to consider the question of immediate return to constitutional government. Presentation was made of a «Minute to the Executive» drafted by Dr. Schialfino and Sr. J. Battle. This is, condensed, to the following effect: That the Council of State is desirous of cooperating to the prompt reconof cooperating to the prompt recon-stitution of the constitutional powers in conformity with public opi nion; that the greater number of the nion; that the greater number of the inture legislators are now elected; that since the authority of the Provisional President to convoke the Republic to general elections has been recognised, he must have equal authority to convoke the legislators thus elected to sittings, both acts being constitutional prerogatives of his office; that public interests demand the closing of the extraordinary period and a return to regular govern-ment, for these reasons the Council of State calls on the Executive to convoke the legislators elect to preparatory sittings, and is prepared second the movement by declar-ng its own dissolution.

The above Minute was very generally approved, and it is quite expected that it will receive the adhesion of a considerable majority of the Council. In that case it will be formally presented and voted before the end of the month, and thus the first step towards the and thus the first step towards the solution of the problem of the day will have been achieved.

For the second time Dr. Juan Carlos Blanco has presented his re-signation as President and member of the Council of State. The ber of the Council of State. The first occasion was just after the military mutiny of July 4, when be presented his resignation—eventually withdrawn—by way of profest against the deportation of the ringleaders. On the present occasion he sets forth as increases the appearament of Col. his reason the appointment of Col. Viera to the Prefectship of Salto, which he professes to regard as an attempt against the liberty of suffrege there, and therefore an act of personal opposition to his own candidature as Senator for the Department. This is rather a Department. This is rather a strained interpretation, nor is the connection between these circumstances and his position in the Council of State at all clear, for the Council had nothing to do with the appointment of Col. Viera. However, we think it may all be all the trouble in Salto, which was magnified by the want of tact in the Government and in securing substantial economy in the «Colorado» Committee in dealing with the schism. Yesterday's Dia exposes the whole imbroglio in unmistakeable terms. There is, it says, and the assertion is supported by known facts, a small group of «colorados», who althoughoriginally supporters of the the coup d'etatof February and the presidential candidature of Sr. Cuestas, have recently turned and the promotorial transfer of the coup duril they are now in fank round until they are now in frank opposition The leader of this group is Dr. Blanco, and its mouthpiece in the press has been the Siglo, edited by Dr. Blanco's brother in-law The object of this group has been to set aside the electoral accords in the clause relating to the presidency of the Republic and, this being accomplished, to substi-tute the candidature of Dr. Blanco for that of Sr. Cuestas. This explains many events preceding and during the electoral period, as it also explains the attitude of the Siglo and its present opposition to an immediate return to constitutionality, which would be the deathblow to their plans. We cannot help regarding the explan-tion as a true one—that Dr Blanco had aspirations to the presidency is no secret—and it cannot be said that it presents Dr. Blanco in a very favorable light.

The arrests made in Salto by Col. Viera are confirmed, but have not the character at first attributed to them. They were effected by order of the President himself, and the persons arrested are three military officers Col Cordoba, Com. Chiazaro and Com. Alciaturi, who are not only concerned in the intrigues which have interrupted the electoral processes there but are also shrewdly suspected of being implicated with the collectivists. They have been ordered to the capital—a step warranted by to the capital -a step warranted by their character as military officers -and it is to be hoped that their absence from Salto will help matters there to cool down. The electors of Salto have been far from blameless, having shown both bad faith and want of discipline, and the noisy outcry they have been mak ing must be very largely discount-ed, but at the same time it must be regretted that the Government has given a certain amount of color to the outery by the proceedings of its lavorable light.

We do not know it it is worth mentioning, but it is said that the invasory collectivists groups which had assembled in Entre Rios have been dissolved. Did they ever real-

URUGUAY NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY.

The directors of the Uruguay Northern Railway Company, in their report for the year ended June 30 last, state that the gross receipts for the year, exclusive of the guarantee, amounted to £11,-603, as against £10,514 for the previous twelve months, or an in crease of £1,089. The expenditure for the same period was £17,707 including £679 amount of income tax paid on guarantee, as against £18,123 in 1896 97, or a decrease of £416. Excluding the amount received for guarantee, the result of the year's working of the line is a loss of £5,424, as compared with that of £7,609 in the previous year. Taking into account the amount of the guarantee, the gross total receipts were £31,580, and the expenditure strictly on revenue account £17,707, leaving a net balance of £13 873. The available current balances are applicable for interest on advances and prior lien scrip, and for the purchase of sleepers and other ne-cessary supplies in Uruguay. The political disturbances in Uruguay have greatly interfered with the rail way business during the year under review, and the position of af fairs is still unsettled. It is hoped that should matters settle down the general traffic would improve. Still, the amount of goods carried in respect of the Saladero traffic has been satisfactory, and the proprietors anticipate still better results during the season which is However, we think it may all be set down as part of the electoral intigue or imbroglio of which Saito is the headquarters. Dr. Blanco's fidelity to the situation has been in doubt ever since July last, and these doubts were confirmed when recently he refused to make diclaration of his adhesion to the electoral accord. He ought then to have withdrawn his candidature, knowing that the good faith of the scolorados party Uruguay Railway Companies are most friendly. The arrangements mentioned at the last general meetfaith of the scolorado: party mentioned at the last general meeting have been carried into effect, of the accord, but this he did the combined management of this

M.V.C.C. versus Buenos Aires CC.

This annual fixture was played This annual fixture was played at the Blanqueada ground on Sunday and Monday, and resulted once more in a win for the visitors. At the wish of Buenos Aires, the teams played 12 men each side. The visitors won the toss on Sunday and sent their opponents to the wicket. This doubtless contributed to the defeat of Montevideo, for the rain of the previous night for the rain of the previous night for the rain of the previous fight had made the wicket very heavy and disastrous to the batters. M. V. scored 83 for their first innings, of which Chater, who played capitally throughout the match, compiled 37. B. A. then went in, on a better wicket, and made 186, to which R.E. Anderson contributed a fine score of 86 and Sver 31. On the fine score of 86 and Syer 31. On the Monday, M. V again went in, and with a more favorable wicket put with a more tavorable wicket put up 120, of which Dunbar contribut-ed 41. Unfortunately we are un-able to give the score of this innings, owing to its having been taken away to Buenos Aires by mistake. B. A. followed on and made the necessary 18 for one wicket, thus winning the match by eleven wickets. On the Sunday there was a considerable number of visitors present in the afternoon. Below are the scores of the first day's

Spain and America. THE FINAL PROPOSALS.

Paris, Nov. 21

The Hispano-American Peace Commission met to-day, the sitting lasting from two to three o'clock. The American presented a memor-andum in which they set forth the grounds on which they have their relusal to accept arbitration.

This memorandum, which is the final proposal of the American Commission, made for the sake of immediate peace was to the effect that the United States, while compelled to insist upou the cession of the entire archipelago of the Philippines, would, if the cession should be made, pay to Spain a sum of 20 million dollars.

The American Commissioners stated that as it was the policy of the United States to maintain in the the United States to maintain in the Philippines an open door to the world's commerce, they would include in the Treaty a provision to the effect that Spanish ships and merchandise should be admitted for a term of years into the ports of the Archipelago on the same conditions as American ships and mertions as American ships and mer-

Meeting face to face in the ball-room, when it was full of people Col. Latorre pushed Dr. of people, Col. Latorre pushed Dr. Herrera aside and struck him. According to one account Dr. Herre-ra, who does not seem to have recognised his agressor, returned the blow; and according to another Col. So did the German offi cers, who must have formed a high opinion of the manners and cus oms of Uruguayan ex presidents. Col. Latorre is certainly much to blame for a public agression of this character, which shows a lament-able want of culture, at the same time, putting aside political ques-tions, the character of Dr. Herrera although he has been a president, is not one to justify his appearance in the society of honorable men and respectable women. It is expected that a duel will be the

This, in our opinion, is what ought to be done with the biograph representations of the buil fights at present being shown here. One need only watch the unhealthy excitement the spectacle produces among the audience to be convinced of the im moral and degrading effect of the spectacle.

—We read in a London paper,—
For the Imperial Penny Postage to come into operation on Christmas Day it is not intended to produce any special stamp, and Somerset House can meet the increased demand out of its large reserve. The Controller is authorised by law to keep a stock of ten millions' worth in the various strong rooms on the Thames Embankment, and lest the outbreak of fire should by any mischance destroy the stock, they are divided among several separale parts of the great building, just as it is usual to separate a stack of gunpowder into several small detachments. The explosion of a powder magazine would create hardly more topsy-tur-vyising in the world around than a general flare up of our whole stock of postage stamps. Postage stamps are not made at Somerset House, though at one time they were all brought there to be perforated. Messrs. De la Rue and Co are the contractors. -Thenew Dutch postage stamps which were issued in honour of the young Queen's attainment of her regal majority, have all been recalled from circulation It appears that «Onz Villeminje» is very much displeased at her portrait on the new postage stamps, and upon the ground that the ungallant and disloyal engraver has made her look ten years older than she really is. It may be remembered that about six years ago, when Queen Wilhel-mina was in her twelfth year, a new series of postage stamps was also cancelled on account of the Royal maiden's displeasure. The fault of the engraver on that occasion, however was precise-ly contrary. The Queen complain-ed that he had made her look too childish ! In both cases, it seems, the engraver's treatment of the hair - a point on which the Queen is very particular-has been re-sponsible for her Majesty's appearances as efar too young, and as *far too old.>

On her return within ten minutes, the mother leund the cradle enveloped in flavors and the unfortunate oped in flames, and the unfortunate infant was so badly burnt that he died within an hour. The child in charge was too terrified to give an explanation, but it is imagined that she must have found some matches and been playing with them.

You are at liberty to make use of this fact if you deem it desirable.

STORM-WORK.

(A SHORT STORY)

But when he reached it, and threw himself from the saddle, the moon suddenly gleamed out from the racing clouds, and for a moment his heart stood still. The gateway was completely blocked with an immense mass of broken atone and rubble. Great rugged boulders were piled on top of each other, a single irregular column of grey stones rose from their midst, and on one side a fragment of wall left standing was all that showed where the old bell-tower had stood. If she were in the chapel, the only place where she would have gone for shelter, how could be reach her? He looked up at the masses of masonry, measuring at the masses of masonry, measuring it with the cool judgement which his soldier's life had taught him, even in desperate moments; but skilled climber as he was, he saw the skilled climber as be was, he saw the peril of a further fall of stone if weight were thrown on the ill-balanced pile. Still—be thought of the trembling, terrified child within, and set his teeth doggedly. Somehow he must reach her, and that speedily. He shouted her name again, and then, as no answer reached him, he set his foot on a broken ridge of masonry, and sprang upwards; two or three steps he took in satety, then with an ominous rumble, agreat block above him tilted, tipped, and came crashing down. Ingram was lithe and active, and catching at a spur of stone with one hend, swung himself backwards while the block went crashing past him. It did not touch him, but it showed him the impossibility of gaining access to the castsibility of gaining access to the cast-le that way, still more of passing out with Nesta in his charge.

He could not remember any other entrance, and had a vague recollect-ion that Bertie had once remarked on there being but one door left open. Nevertheless, lugram passed the bridle of his horse over his arm, and slowly made the circuit of the and slowly made the circuit of the building, presently finding a tree-stump, to which he fastened the animal, and, so freed, made a closer examination of the outer wall, which seemed to go on so unendingly without break or chasm through which he might force entrance. His face was set rigidly. He told himself fiercely that he was a fool not to have foreseen some such misadventure, and have brought men and ture, and have brought men and ladders with him; but the conviction graw on him that, prisoned in the chapel, he would find Nesta, and in his quick pity for her, he could not determine to condemn her to further hours of despair while he procured assistance.

The moon bad vanished again, and he was passing his hand over a part of the wall which seemed somewhat more damaged by time, in the hope that some gap might be found, when suddenly his fingers touched iron. With a sudden hope springing in him, he drew out his tusee box and struck half-a-dozen matches in rapid ancession. Then he dropped rapid succession. Then he dropped the case with an abrupt exclamation of thankfulness. He was standing in front of the ancient sally-port. An iron railing had been put across the entrance, and beyond it was half-choked with small stones and olimbanish but the iron was thick with ing ivy, but the iron was thick with rust, and logram glanced at his brown, muscular fingers with a grim determination that it should not withstand them. He took a not withstand them. He took a strong grip and shook and tugged with all his might, till he was obliged to stop and lean back against the wall, panting for breath. He paused a minute or two, and drew his hand-kerchief across his face, then he took hold of the old rusted iron again. For a time it withstood all effort, till suddenly, without any previous yielding, it snapped away in his hand, and sent him staggering back.

The way was open to bim, and with such a sense of glad relief as he had never expecienced before. Ingram made his way to the chapel, and swung back the fastened door. He called again, and then, tearing he knew not what, he stepped in, groping his way. Suddenly a shivering sob met his ear.

«Nestal» he cried desperately, are you here? It is I. Alan lugram.

His eyes were getting accustom-ed to the darkness, and he could just see a little dark figure rise from a corner. He took one quick step towards it, and threw his arm round her, feeling, as he did so, how she was trembling, and bearing again the frightened sobbing.

He forgot everything but the fact that she was clinging to him with both hands, shaking so that she would have fallen but for his arm.

would have fallen but for his arm.

«My darling! my poor little gir!!»
he cried, «you are quite safe now.
Ob, my poor little love, how frightened you must have been!»
She was worn out, and only realised that she had found safety and help and protection.

The door shut, and I couldn't open it, she murmured. Oh, it was so dreadful—I thought I should have to die, and that you wouldn't come! I am so tired!

Even as she spoke, she drooped helplessly against him, whether in sleep or unconsciousness lugram was not sure. There was only one was not sure. There was allowed no shelter and fire as quickly as possible. His horse was allowed no delay in the ride back to Betsy's cottage. He found the cld woman looking out anxiously for them.

She cleared a hard, shiny sofa, that she might lay the slight figure he carried upon it, and she hung over the girl with little tender crooks which satisfied the Major that he was leaving her in kindly hards. English Drapery Store
