brings to a tragic close an angry politi-indemnizacion alguna. cal controversy. As age is reckoned in 11 the public life of this country, the late Parliamentary Under Secretary to the Lord Lieutenant of Irelands was still a young man, but he had lived long enough to have lost the confidence of his countrymen and to have incurred the active hostility of the partyt of which he was once a member. Born in 1833 and educated at Eton, Colonel King-Harman did not enter the House of Commons until 1877, when he became M. P. for Slig). He was then in favour of Home Titules sorteades DE LA DEUDA UNIFICADA, Rule. In 1880 he was defeated by Mr. Thomas Sexton. For nearly three years Colonel King-Harman remained out of 47, 100, 205, 227, 282, 332, 533, 627. The creation for him of a new and unnecessary office and the ostentatious manner in which the fact was proclaimed that there BRITISH HOSPITAL was no salary attached to it, followed MONTEVIDEO by the attempt in the present session to obtain legislative sanction for his salary, made him the target of relentless but not unmerited criticism. There was no excuse for this job, and so unpopular was the transaction that the Government very narrowly escaped defeat.
