MONTEVIDEO, JULY 6, 1889.

VALUE OF LAND AND SETTLEMENT.

The experience of the past 10 years has completely exploded old-time ideas attached to ownership and tenancy of land. Previous to the all-round depreciation in values of agricultural and pastoral products, rents readily obtainable enabled holders of encumbered properties to meet liabilities and enjoy a considerable marginal income. The fall in prices primarily in the Mother Country entailed exhaustion of farmers' capital, for in the beginning the depression was regarded as of only a temporary nature, but when its permanence became manifest remissions of rents were conceded in England and Scotland; but liberal as these annual abatements have been as a rule, they have proved inadequate to restore tenants to their former position of independence and prosperity, while the landlords generally have been in deplorably straitened circumstances.

Landed properties offered for sale have rarely realised the amounts raised on mortgage, and competent authorities estimate the depreciation in values at 30 per cent—a reduction about equivalent to the fall in prices of produce. In Ireland, where the tenant has the privilege of appealing to land commissioners for adjustment of rent, the reductions have been so considerable that application has been made to the Imperial Government for a measure of relief, in the shape of a statutory reduction of interest on mortgages contracted when produce brought remunerative prices and agricultural affairs were prosperous.

The contention of these landowners is that judicial rents were fixed some years ago by the land commissioners, but since then, in consequence of the further fall in value of produce, a further compulsory revision of rentals has been enforced and reductions made, ranging from 6 1/2 to 22 per cent; therefore, it is urged, settlements and mortgages should also be subjected to revision. The foregoing circumstances are expressly referred to here, because they certify of startling social changes in the United Kingdom. The hunger for land has subsided, sentimental ideas attached to the possession of landed property have been dispelled, and practically in the future its value will depend on the producing capabilities and minor incidental considerations.

Two circumstances, which have operated so disastrously on landowners and tenants in the United Kingdom have had their corresponding influences in other countries—old and new. In France, where peasant proprietors so largely obtain, notwithstanding the imposition of protective duties two years ago, the deplorable condition of cultivators has lately been enlarged upon by all sections of the French press, and further measures of protection against imports of foreign foods demanded. The condition of two farmers in Germany was described in a recent speech from the Throne as ruinous, and legislative action asked for to promote the welfare of those engaged in agricultural industries.

It is, however, to the United States we must look for signs of the times, resulting from rash investments in land and its occupations by men with insatiable capital. Commenting on monetary troubles in the Western States, the New York correspondent of the Economist (London) writes:—At the Far West land real estate booms are credited with damaging effects on the commercial communities in the vicinity where the latter have dabbled in real estate. This is true of Kansas City, Wichita, St. Joseph, and conspicuously the case at Los Angeles, California, where many who have imagined themselves worth thousands find themselves in need of a situation.

It is added that in Kansas several loan and investment companies organisations formed for advancing money on farms—were about to withdraw from the State owing to the passage of State laws affecting rates of interest and conditions of mortgage. T. J. securities are not considered so desirable, and the circumstances are the more significant because, to quote the correspondent's words, "Kansas has been, and still is, probably, one of the more prosperous of the trans-Mississippi grain States."

The unfavourable laws are reported to include the reduction of the legal rate of interest from 7 to 6 percent.

Speaking on the action of the loan companies referred to, a prominent Western capitalist declared that the Western farmer would be a good deal "better off" if these loaning companies had never invaded the West with their 7 per cent. loans, 10 per cent. commission contracts, and the like; that the Western farmer had often been induced to borrow simply because of the system of drumming-up customers employed by these companies; that the West, except in the more sparsely settled regions, has capital enough, or nearly enough, to supply the necessities of the new settler. It was further estimated that more than one concern, which has been loaning money on Western farm lands for so many years without ever having had to foreclose a mortgage will soon have a new story to tell.

Already at the East we are beginning to hear mumblings of discontent; and in Massachusetts, within a week, the president of a trust company said, at a legislative hearing, that "within a few years there will be one of the biggest panics in those Western farm securities that we have had for a long time."

Massachusetts savings banks, of course, are not permitted to invest their funds in Western farm mortgages, although Massachusetts trust companies are. However, but two of the trust companies chartered by that State have availed themselves of the privilege, and these two, while requesting a continuance of the privilege, of so investing, "welcome reasonable restrictions." If all this means anything, it cannot be construed as less than a cautionary signal.

The experiences of the Western States farmers are not unfamiliar to their brethren in the colonies. Intending settlers are almost invariably anxious to grasp more land than they have capital to work. Sometimes, indeed, nearly all their means are invested in the purchase of a holding, consequently improvements have to be proceeded with and the land stocked on credit. Farmers in this position suffer acutely. They are only ostensibly the owners of their farms, and live in constant dread of a compulsory sale of the pledged properties.

Somehow a strange contrast was presented by the two shores of the Straits. On the Patagonian side we had still the same succession of rounded hills, densely timbered down to the very edge of the water, whilst on the Tierra del Fuego coast they rose, for the most part, bleak and bare, save for a few clumps of trees nestling in the more sheltered nooks, and presented, in numerous instances, flanks torn and scarred by the action of long dried-up torrents or vanished glaciers. One of the more distant peaks was pointed out to me as attaining a height of 7,000 feet, and there were several of nearly half this altitude close to the shore on either hand. Now the eye would be caught by some quaintly outlined rock, now by a more than usually contorted tree; and anon by some narrow inlet winding out of sight in shore, or a little hut, reared to shelter a party of lumbermen or mining prospectors; but perhaps the finest sight of all was that presented by the glaciers, extending in some cases almost to the water's edge, and glittering, like masses of pale asphodel against the dark-green foliage clothing the surrounding hillsides.

Not was life lacking in these apparently primeval solitudes, for as the steamer sped on we could from time to time discern canoes, which had put off from the shore in the hope of intercepting her, and were drifting across her track. We slowed down to let the first couple of these craft, which we sighted, come alongside. They were composed merely of skins stretched on a framework of poles rudely lashed together, and were each manned by a family party. In one I noticed a middle-aged man, grotesquely clad in an old black frock coat and a battered wide-wake, a woman, whose sole garment was a strip of red blanket worn postcoat fashion, a girl even more scantily attired; and a small boy in like case. The two females did all the work of paddling the boat, the man, who was contenting himself with catching the rope thrown to him from the ship, and making his craft just to it.

This done, the whole party began to jabber in chorus, what was construed as a request for tobacco; and some packets of this and a barrel filled with biscuits and other provisions, were lowered into their craft, in return for some skins they had proffered for barter. One of our passengers was desirous of obtaining a photograph of the canoe and its inmates, and accordingly descended the gangway ladder, camera in hand, with this object. The noble savage at the bow of the canoe, however, after apparently weighing in his mind the problem, whether the photographic apparatus was a gift of an unknown character intended for presentation to himself, or a species of infernal machine, calculated to hurl him and his craft to destruction, came apparently to the latter conclusion, loosed the rope, and was soon swept out of range of the lens.

The poor wretches all looked quiet and simple enough, but each canoe was provided with a bundle of long-shafted spears tipped with sharpened bone "spikes," and I was assured that they would have no hesitation in trying to surprise and seize any craft of sufficient malignity to offer them a chance of success. Such attacks have been more than once made on the small vessels engaged in sealing about the more western of the group of islands adjacent to Tierra del Fuego, and any seaman cast ashore there from a wreck is certain to be knocked on the head. So we held on our way through a series of reaches such as Forward Reach, English Reach, Crooked Reach, Long Reach, and Sea Reach, till evening found us once more in the open sea, off Cape Pilar.

The Queen, accompanied by the Princess Victoria of Prussia and the Princess of Linington, left Windsor Castle last evening for Baltimore. It is argued that her Majesty will remain at Baltimore for fifteen days, and then return to Windsor for the purpose of attending the Windsor Agricultural Show.

At the meeting of the Select Committee for London yesterday, the Industrial Societies Committee submitted reports as to inquiries they had made with reference to the Industrial Societies Bill before the House of Lords. They presented some statements which they had agreed to, and it was decided that the House Secretary and Lord Browlow should be constituted with the Royal Household bill: Westminster.

The chief event at Epsom yesterday was the running for the Grand Prize, which was won by Lord Allington's Kingscote, the Duke of Portland's Melanion being second, and Mr. Tidy's Indian Prince third. Of the other races, the Hotten Stakes fell to Mr. W.G. Stevens's Judith, the Two-year-old Stakes to Mr. W. T. Sherne's Royal Stand, the Boxer bulging was crowded with spectators, and they dispersed hurriedly before the storm began—at the hour appointed for the national sport. Along the banks of the Manzanaras a panic prevailed among the people engaged in "washing" clothes, who risked their lives to save their linen from being swept away by the swollen river. The telegraph and railway lines have suffered considerably. Much damage

Temores, placer en comunicar a Vd. que la Máquina de coser WHITE recibió el dulce premio y Medalla en la gran Exposición Centenario que tuvo lugar el año pasado en «Cincinnati de los Estados Unidos». La Exposición duraba nueve meses durante todo este tiempo la Máquina WHITE estaba diariamente en competencia con las máquinas de coser Bonafanti, New Home, Singer y otras.
Los juicios sobre las máquinas de coser han sido en decisión en favor de la WHITE.
Espero lo que dicen los juicios de su mente como tónico-digestivo a la vez.

A case in which Miss Ethel Fry, otherwise Ethel Florence, a young lady who has been on the streets, and Mr. Lawrence Smith, of the city, of Westbridge street, St. Paul Street, of Westbridge street, came on the London Sheriff's court yesterday for the assessment of damages. The jury awarded the plaintiff £50.

Ann Wells, a middle-aged woman was examined at Westbridge-street, yesterday—Mr. Montague Williams testified his intention to sue the case for £100—on a charge of assaulting Florence Smith, a child. Since the summons was taken out the child has died, and the inquest, though a verdict of death from the natural causes was returned, the defendant was severely censured.

William Barrett, landlord of the Royal Oak public-house, in Harpur-street, New Kent-road, was charged at Southwark yesterday with keeping open his house for the purpose of betting; while Thomas Sisking and John Thomas were charged with using the house as a betting-house and also with being sharers in the business. The latter was a witness that the house was a licensed shop.

Precisamente en el departamento que tiene mas asegurado un gran porvenir.

Léase el detalle que es realmente

¡TENTADOR!

Estas 80 chacras que forman parte de la colonia «Banco Constructor Oriental» y cuya inauguración tendrá lugar el martes 16 de Julio a la una de la tarde en la Bolsa de Comercio, están ubicadas en el departamento del mismo nombre y a una legua y media del pueblo de Rosario y a dos leguas de los puentes del Rosario y el Sauce cruzada por grandes e importantes vías férreas proyectadas, que unirá al Uruguay con la Colonia y a ésta al Uruguay y del Sauce a San José, rodeado por las provincias y ricas colonias Suiza, Cosmopolita con la cual linda, Pímoneta y Espartero, atravesada por los caminos nacionales y departamentales, además de los caminos que van de la Colonia a San José y Montevideo, y como estas grandes vías de comunicación no dicen bastante importancia a esta colonia el Banco Constructor Oriental ha abierto también grandes caminos.

Las líneas férreas proyectadas tendrán estación en esta colonia y en su centro se halla situado el Pueblo de la misma donde habrá colegios e iglesia, delegación policial y demás establecimientos públicos, y en este pueblo futuro centro de trabajo y bienestar se venderán solares de 12 1/2 vs. de frente por 50 vs. de fondo pagaderos a razon de

2 pesos mensuales

De manera que los vecinos del pueblo que pueden comprar solares al lado de inmediato a las iglesias, plazas, colegios, etc., y que pagarán con solo dos pesos mensuales podrán comprar hermosas chacras pagaderas a inmediatos a los puentes del Rosario y el Sauce puentes de gran importancia y de mejor porvenir donde podrán embarrancar sus productos.

20 pesos mensuales!!

A legua y media del pueblo del Rosario con estaciones de líneas férreas que darán gran impulso a aquella rica parte del departamento de la Colonia tal y como uno de los departamentos llamados a un porvenir grandioso porque todos los hombres de fortuna de Buenos Aires miran aquella tierra como la tierra de promisión adquiriendo grandes fracciones de campo porque con su carácter próspero han visto que era de progreso y engrandecimiento de la Colonia.

¡Otro dato!

Como si todos los detalles expuestos, no fueran bastante para despertar el natural interés para este gran acontecimiento dire que los arroyos Colla, Sauce Grande y Güico río Alegre, Pedraza y otros y varias caídas de agua forman un río que cruza las chacras que ofrece rematar lo que es indispensable en la vida de las colonias.

80 chacras!!

Pagaderas a

20 pesos mensuales!

que forman la grande y bien situada «Colonia Banco Constructor Oriental» ubicada en el departamento del mismo nombre, al lado del floreciente Pueblo del Rosario con su respectivo Pueblo, Estaciones de Ferro-Carriles, arroyos, caídas, etc., y vendidas cada chacra de área que varían de 15 a 40 cuadradas a razon de

20 pesos mensuales

Sin esfuerzo se verá y se comprende el espíritu progresista de la Institución Banco Constructor Oriental, que afanoso y resuelto hasta el sacrificio, ofrece sus tierras en condiciones de venta a quienes como nunca se han ofrecido que forma barrios que a la vuelta de medio año, son centros progresistas de numerosos vecindarios, con calles empedradas a su costa, que crea colonias en varios departamentos, y que como si no fuera bastante, forma ahora una hermosa colonia en el mas floreciente de los departamentos de la República, y a la cual ha denominado con el nombre de que significa para nosotros el gran factor del progreso de este país.

Basta ver los planos para ver la multitud de caminos, arroyos, caídas, pueblos y puentes que lo son invaluables para formarse así una idea de que comprar una, dos o mas chacras, es saber asegurar su capital, es saber cuidar de su porvenir, porque no solamente ofrecemos concretos a comprar solares aquí en Montevideo, sino que debemos imitar el ejemplo de los hombres previsores de la República Argentina, que busca el departamento de la Colonia, con preferencia a los otros de esta República, por que han comprendido el grandioso porvenir que lo está reservado.

Último detalle interesante

Estas chacras tienen las condiciones mas superiores que puede presentarse. No hay en la República campos mejores para la labranza y agricultura.

Solemne Inauguración de la gran Colonia Agrícola, Industrial y Pastoral «Banco Constructor Oriental».
