MONTEVIDEO, OCTOBER 23, 1889.

Consular report.

Spanish is an easy language to learn, but is not quite so easy that it may be picked up in a packet-boat or a railway train in a flying visit to a Spanish community. This, according to the British Consul at Vera Cruz, is well understood by American, and doubtless also by A new sheep-sharing machine

The Barquent machine, for the shearing of sheep, though exhibited at Melbourne, seems to be of American invention, and its chief claim is great facility in construction. The cutter, which is vory similar to a horse-clipper, may be driven either by an ordinary engine or horse works. The machine is connected by a pulley about six feet from the ground, which in turn is connected with the clipper by an endless calgut belt which runs through a flexible tube to an enclosed driving wheel working an eccentric connected with the top comb. The main point relied upon to recommend it to the notice of intending purchasers is the absence of complicated working parts.

The machine can be thrown in or out of gear by a turn of a small lever on the part held by the shearer, thus giving the operator full use of both hands. It is said to be coming into general use in South America, where it is apparently giving every satisfaction. The average time taken to shear each sheep at the trial was five minutes, but with the motive in better working order a reduction of about half a minute per sheep can be made.

Expensive Mutton.

The recent destruction of a valuable ewo which cost 300 guinea is reported from Donington. The owner of the ewe had purchased her in Melbourne, for the amount named, for breeding purposes in his station in New South Wales.

The ewe was duly trained to Danilquin, and located on the night of its arrival in a small paddock, in which was a shepherd's hut. A station hand was to arrive on the following day to take delivery. It is supposed that some traveller, determined on accepting bush hospitality, put up with little ceremony at the hut for the night. The shepherd was absent when he arrived, and failing to find any signs about of a meat supply for supper, determined on acting for the nonce as the shepherd's butcher.

Accordingly he seized the prize ewe, cut her throat, and in a short space of time had skinned, dressed, and transformed the 300 guinea's worth into common eating mutton.—Melbourne Leader.

Capture of a Brigand in

Turkey

A noted brigand named Mehmed Peklevan has been brought to the capital, and will probably be placed upon his trial for some of the many offences which he has committed. His band has been for several years past the scourge of the country between the Asiatic shore of the Bosphorus and Ismid. Reports of many of the outrages committed by him and his gang have found their way from time to time into the local Press, but brigandage throughout the whole country is so common that the papers as a rule chronicle only the more striking instances. Among these was the following: Some eighteen months ago Peklevan took a fancy to a girl in a village on the Gulf of Ismid. As the father objected to give his daughter to a man exercising so been regarded as a specially honest and efficient servant. He was, however, recougised, and though when surprised and arrested he denied that he was Meh-med Peklevan, the evidence of identity was so strong that he finally confessed himself to be the famous brigand. He was sent in chains to the capital, and, it is said, has since the made a full confession of his misdeeds. It will be interesting to notice whether or no he will be hanged.
